ASK TEN citizens inside Chicago's loop their opinion of the national election and you get a vague, "Well, I don't know. What do you think?"

Ask ten what they think of the Loeb-Leopold murder trial and vague indifference vanishes.

ONE: "They ought to be hanged, only hanging is too good for them."

Two: "Jail them for life, at hard labor, that will cure them. To hang them, punishing and disgracing the fathers and mothers, would let the murderers off too easy."

THREE: "You can't send them to prison; it wouldn't be right to put them in with respectable convicts. Why, say, those boys would make an atheist out of every man in the prison. Can you imagine turning loose a lot of criminals, that don't believe in hell fire, or that God is watching. No.

"What wouldn't they do?"

Four: "They were both born murderers and thieves. Their parents ought to have known what they were, and ought to have protected the community against them.

"To have sons like that running around is like turning mad dogs into the streets."

FIVE: "If they imprison those boys, for life, as they call it, they will be out in two or four years. You can do anything with 'dough', and when they come out, whose children will be safe?"

Six: "Prison is the place. No use torturing the fathers and mothers, who have committed no crime. Hard prison work would punish such boys far more than quick strangling."

SEVEN: "If they don't hang those boys, there will be riots, and somebody will get what's coming to him. They have confessed, and the State has proved a crime that calls for hanging, and the people mean to have a hanging, and a double portion."

Eight: "The luckiest thing that could happen to them would be hanging. Every criminal in every jail knows what they did to the little Franks boy. If they land in prison, they will be kicked around for a few days, then somebody will quietly give them a rap on the head like the one they gave that little boy. They won't enjoy themselves in prison."

NINE: "To hear them talk about Leopold and Loeb you would think it was the first time anything horrible ever happened. Pouring acid on the face of that dead boy was sickening, but what about pouring kerosene over a living man and setting fire to him? What about a mob kicking a young woman around the street, and after beating her up, pouring boiling hot tar over her naked body? We are all savages and any mob proves it."

Ten: "They ought to set these boys free, near some big public school, first gathering together a hundred mothers and fathers with clubs in their hands. What gets me is the self control of the father of that murdered boy, sitting every day within ten feet of the two young wolves that killed his son.

"If it was my son, oh, boy! Why doesn't he walk up behind them, with a gun in each hand, poke the guns into their back, fill them full of lead and then say to the judge: 'Now go ahead and try me.' They would build a monument to him and carry him out of the court on their shoulders. If it wasn't for his dignity, the judge would help carry him."

MR. DAVIS, able dry-goods merchant of Waterloo, Ia., tells an inter-State meeting of merchants in Chicago that this country "faces an era of the greatest prosperity ever experienced."

Dry goods men, especially owners of department stores, deal with a bigger percentage of the population than all other business men put together. They are able to judge conditions, dealing directly with millions of homes.

COX DEFIED BY ARMED KLANSMEN

Governor May Ban Meetings Following Riots in Which 24 Were Arrested

Dramatically defied by the Ku Klux Klan and awakened to the need for drastic action by the bloody Klan riots in Haverhill, last night, when five anti-klansmen were shot, Governor Cox let it be known today that he is considering issuing an executive order forbidding the organization to hold any more meetings in public.

He has asked the Attorney-General's office what his powers in the matter are.

Only yesterday the Governor publicly appealed to klansmen to discontinue demonstrations calculated to lead to bloodshed.

At Haverhill last night members of the K. K. K. appeared armed and ready to fight, which was not long in coming.

"It is true that people have the right of assembly," Governor Cox said. "But it also is true that these meetings excite the passions of others and lead to violence."

"PRESENT NOT THE TIME."

The Governor intimated that he is not ready to order out State troops to keep order.

He could do so, at the instance of the authorities of the cities and towns affected, but he said he did not think the time had arrived to go so far.

The Governor and Captain George A. Parker of the State patrol pointed out the difficulty of policing the State against Ku Klux disorders.

"These meetings take place many miles apart. There is no way to figure out which will end in fighting," said Captain Parker. "In addition, my men frequently are not notified such meetings are to be held.

"Lancaster, Haverhill and Spencer have been the scenes of riot. I have no way of telling where the trouble will break out next."

In addition to the five men shot,

ATTEMPT TO WRECK TRAIN

Huge Boulder Put on B. & A. Tracks at West Newton Just Before Express Is Due

An attempt was made to wreck a Boston & Albany passenger train in West Newton today.

Section hands labored frantically with crowbars and timber to remove the huge boulder which had been placed on the tracks over which a crowded Boston-bound train was due to pass in a few minutes.

The men discovered the boulder as they arrived in the yards to begin their day's work.

Just as the workmen, with a final heave, rolled the heavy obstruction from the right of way, the train of several coaches whizzed by at high speed.

Railroad officials asked the Newton police to investigate the attempt to wreck the train. A patrolman was asigned to watch the spot tonight. It is believed youthful vandals place teh boulder on the tracks.

REDMOND'S STAR MAN WILL GO

Prosecution Understands the Head of Brokers Will Accept Without Fight

James S. Lamont, former president of the defunct stock brokerage house of George F. Redmond & Company, Inc., was sentenced to a year and a day in the House of Correction at Plmouth today for conspiracy to defraud.

He pleaded guilty to a single count in the indictment against him weeks ago.

Judge Lowell of the Federal District Court, who handled all the cases growing out of the collapse of the Redmond concern, pronounced sentence.

He turned State's evidence against George F. Redmond, his old associate, and was largely responsible for Redmond's conviction.

In view of his plea, Lamont is expected to accept the sentence without further struggle and to begin serving his time at once.

scores were injured in the Haverhill battle.

While the fighting was at its height anti-klansmen stoned a motor truck in which Haverhill police were escorting seven members of the K. K. K.

Twenty-four men, klansmen and anti-klansmen, alike, were arrested for disturbance of the peace.

The first outbreak occurred when the klansmen, hundreds strong, crossed the Haverhill line from Groveland, where they had been in session.

1,000 AUTOS IN LINE.

There were about 1,000 automobiles in line. On the running boards, according to the police, were armed klansmen, keeping close watch on the crowd.

Most of the anti-klan men were in automobiles, too. At first there was hooting. Then anti-klansmen drove their machines abreast of the leaders of the klan procession.

It is the contention of the anti-klansmen that their foes committed the first overt act, which was to fire into a car full of young men, five of whom were wounded.

Sporadic fighting continued in isolated sections of Haverhill this forenoon, as klansmen and anti-klansmen recognized opponents of the major fray.

POLICE ALL ON DUTY.

Demands for police protection poured in upon the Haverhill police and every man in the department was kept on duty until noon.

Not more than half a dozen State policemen were on duty around the Klan meeting and not all of them crossed over into Haverhill.

The men wounded were:

James Culbert, No. 22 Auburn street, Haverhill.

James Connolly, No. 8 Lewis street, Haverhill.

Francis Connor, Haverhill.

Edmund Lucy, No. 85 Dexter street, Haverhill.

A boy named Buckley of Groveland.

They are at the Gale Hospital. None of them is in grave danger.

The klansmen arrested, charged with shooting them, were:

Ralph O. Gould, No. 6 Mainerd avenue, Bradford; Merrill Luce, No. 101 Concord street, Haverhill; Arthur H. Lowd, Kenoza street, Haverhill; Percy B. Spofford, No. 82, Kenoza street, Haverhill; Harold D. Perkins, No. 384 East Broadway, Haverhill, and Harold C. Casswel, Kenoza street, Haverhill.

Other alleged klansmen arrested, all by the Haverhill city police are:

Thirteen of those under arrest on charges of disturbing the peace were led to the court house under heavy guard today.

GUARDED AT COURT.

Surrounded by six Haverhill bluecoats the thirteen prisoners walked to Judge Winn's court room a quarter of a mile away.

Captain Sullivan of the Haverhill police said this action was not taken because they feared the men would escape but for the protection of the prisoners who, it was feared, would be assaulted by a gang of 200 persons who stood outside the court house and along the street when the court opened.

Twenty-one of the prisoners arrested entered pleas of not guilty. There was some delay at the opening because John K. Boston, said to be an organizer for the Klan, stated to the court that the members of the Ku Klux Klan had been unable to procure counsel.

Boston told the court that he had asked four Haverhill lawyers to act for the defendants, but that each of them had refused the cases. Attorney A. Franklin Priest finally agreed to defend the prisoners and the trials were started.

When Boston began his address to the court Judge Winn noticed that he was holding an unlighted cigar butt in his hand. He asked Boston to park the weed outside and Boston complied with his request.

The entire Haverhill police department was called out and remained on duty until a late hour.

The State police announced that the injured men at the Gale Hospital would be placed under arrest as soon as they were able to leave the institution.

5,000 AT KLAVERN.

Five thousand Klansmen, every one robed, had gathered at Perry Hill, Groveland, just outside Haverhill. The klavern was conducted without disorder, 300 armed guards patrolling the roads surrounding the field.

It was while the Klansmen were leaving the scene of the meeting and going through Haverhill in 1,000 automobiles, that the rioting occurred.

When a car bearing a party of anti-Klansmen drew abreast of the head of the Klan procession, a volley was fired into the machine.

HUNDREDS IN PERIL.

Hundreds of lives were in jeopardy when the Klansmen and their foes clashed as the long automobile procession wended its way through Haverhill.

The meeting broke up shortly after 1 A. M. The Klansmen, instead of boarding their machines, formed a double line and marched down King street on either side of line of cars. Only the drivers were in the machines.

Sawyer Files Bill; Says Klan Gives Gun Permits

Issuance of permits to carry firearms by mayors of cities, selectmen and civilian officers of towns in this State, a condition which, in the opinion of Representative Roland D. Sawyer of Ware, bids fair to make "an armed camp of Massachusetts" was assailed by the pastor-legislator today.

Mr. Sawyer filed with the Clerk of the House an amendment to the statutes covering issuance of firearms permits which places the sole authority in justices of the courts, boards of police in cities, and chiefs of uniformed police departments in towns. He said:

"In many instances where members of the Ku Klux Klan meet, carrying arms, the police are powerless to interfere because the Klansmen produce permits allowing them to carry weapons.

"Moreoer, these permits are issued in many cases by civil officers in sympathy with the Klan, or by Klansmen themselves.

"Under these conditions Massachusetts bids fair to become an armed camp. No wonder homicides are increasing."

OWNED HOME WHERE BIG FIRE STARTED

MRS. ARTHUR C. SMITH

Whose cottage at York Harbor, Me., was first to take fire and spread flames that caused $150,000 loss.

POLICE GUARD RICHES IN YORK HARBOR FIRE

York Harbor, Me., July 31.—State and local police today were guarding hundreds of thousands of dollars' worth of silver plate and antiques piled on the lawns of the millionaire colony here, following the destruction of seven cottages by fire, with an estimated loss of $150,000.

The entire Summer settlement, one of the most exclusive in New England, was threatened. The fire started from a cigarette carelessly thrown amongst dry shrubbery about the home of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur C. Smith of Boston.

While it was at its height, another fire destroyed the buildings on the Winchester Farm on Lafayette road, just outside Portsmouth, N. H., with a loss of $100,000.

FIRE SPREADS RAPIDLY.

The York Harbor fire occurred in what is known as the Norwoods Farms section and starting in dry grass and shrubbery, quickly spread to the Smith cottage, then to the home of L. Rodman Page, [illegible], of Philadelphia.

In quick succession the cottages of Miss E. L. Gibbs of Cliftondale, Mass., Charles L. Tappin of Long Island, the Misses Elizabeth and Frances Hollis of Boston, Miss Mabel Henshaw of Cambridge and Robert N. Jackson of Baltimore were destroyed.

CALL FOR HELP.

Shortly after the fire broke out York Harbor officials realized their apparatus was inadequate and called for help from ten Maine and New Hampshire towns.

The Albracca Hotel, just across the street from the burning cottages was in constant danger. Firemen played streams on the roof and the hotel was saved.

Marshall Langhorne of Washington, D. C., whose house was slightly damaged, was one of those who discovered thieves trying to steal valuables removed to a place of safety from his home. He called the police, but the thieves threw down all they had gathered and escaped.

A partial list of the occupants of houses in the path of the flames follows:

Mrs. R. C. Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Langhorne, Washington, W. S. Doolittle, Albany; Charles Doolittle, Utica; Admiral R. F. O'Neill, Boston and Washington; J. Warner Steele, Philadelphia; Frank Sproule, Pittsburgh; Mr. and Mrs. Howard Lee Roome, H. Blanchard Domick, J. H. Allen, New York; Miss Mildred Hoyells, Boston; Mr. and Mrs. George L. Batchelder, Boston, and Newton Barney, Hartford.

San Francisco, July 31 (I.N.S.)—With a wall of flame on two sides and rapidly closing the gap on the third side, the town of Floriston, in the Truckee Canyon, was reported deserted today. Its 250 inhabitants fled before a forest fire with their portable belongings. Two lives have been lost.

Bostonians gave a sigh of relief today when a cooling east wind broke the heat wave of the past two days. Additional relief in probable showers tonight was promised by the weather forecaster.

Not only are showers promised for tonight, but cooling north to northwest winds are on the weatherman's bill of fare for tomorrow.

During the early hours today the temperatures indicated another day of sweltering, being three or four degrees higher than yesterday, but as the day progressed the cooling wind tempered the heat and the thousands of Bostonians who passed a sleepless night were grateful for the change.

box and sounded a bell alarm, which was followed by a second.

Smoke and sparks, carried on a brisk breeze, floated throughout the downtown business district and a large crowd was gathered at the scene of the blaze.

Effective work by the first firemen on the scene prevented spread of the fire to other buildings. For a time the flames blazed on the fourth floor but a deluge of water proved effective.

Awnings on a building at the corner of Pearl and High street were ignited by flying sparks.

Two firemen, manning a hose-nozzle on the fifth floor, were nearly overcome by smoke. They were assisted to fire-escapes, where they quickly revived.

The Walworth English Flett Company, manufacturers of pumps, the George E. Cooper Company, starch and glue manufacturers, and the paper-box machinery plant of J. C. Metcalf suffered damage.

TRUCKLOAD OF LIQUOR SEIZED IN DORCHESTER

Acting on information that a load of liquor was to pass through Dorchester early today, Sergeant Mason and Patrolman Marks of the Fields Corner station were assigned to watch. As the officers were standing on Arcadia street, a truck came into view. The men were arrested as suspicious persons. A search of the truck revealed 800 gallons of distilled spirits. In the Dorchester Court both men were held in $300 for trial August 8. They gave these names: Vincenzo Vrigida, 27, and Domonic Corelli, 31, both of No. 155 Water street, Plymouth.

BITTER BATTLE ON INSANITY DEFENCE

State in Franks Case Keeps Up Fight Despite Judge's Attitude of Boredom

Chicago, July 31 (I.N.S.).—The legal battle over whether alienists are to be permitted to testify that Nathan Leopold, Jr., and Richard A. Loeb are afflicted with "functional mental diseases," even though not insane waxed hotter and hotter in Judge John R. Caverly's court today where the blithe young collegians are on trial for their lives for the kidnaping and slaying of little Bobbie Franks.

Several times Judge Caverly indicated that he was tired of the argument and that he was not going to change his decision that the psychiatrists should be allowed to give their testimony "for what it is worth," but the State's attorneys continued doggedly and persistently to read precedents and authorities to show that his decision was wrong and unprecedented.

The State continued to accuse the defence of seeking to set up a defence of insanity under long-winded scientific names.

"Depravity of character and abandoned habits are not evidence of insanity," read Assistant State's Attorney Marshall from a huge volume of Illinois Supreme Court decisions.

"Even so," broke in Judge Caverly, "is that any reason why the courts should not hear evidence of depravity of character and abandoned habits, either in aggravation of the crime on the State's side or in mitigation of the punishment on the side of the defence?

"We have eliminated here the question of insanity and nothing bearing on the insanity of these defendants will be permitted to go in."

"How are you going to prove depravity and habits by these so-called experts?" demand State's Attorney Crowe. "It is perfectly apparent that the defense is not calling these alienists to prove depravity.

"They are going to testify to a lot of hearsay conversations, etc., on which they have construed theories as to their mental condition and their responsibility for this crime."

Judge Caverly placidly reiterated that it was entirely problematical any way what effect the testimony of the scientists would have.

"I may strike it all out," he said, "or none at all, or part of it. But I cannot tell whether it is admissible evidence until I know what it is."

Clarence S. Darrow, chief of the defense, broke in and said to Crowe:

"When you were a judge on the bench, Mr. Crowe, did you not hear evidence of insanity in a plea of guilt yto first degree murder? How about the alienists who testified in the FitzGerald case?" returned Darrow.

"He merely testified that the man was a burglar," retorted Crowe, "but FitzGerald was sentended to hang and was hanged, too."

"Allenists tell me," declared Assistant State's Attorney Marshall, "that seventy per cent of all the cases admitted to our asylums are 'afflicted with a mental disease, functional in character.' "

Marshall reiterated that at the first question of the sanity or insanity of Loeb and Leopold "the common law of Illinois commands that a jury be called."

They wrangled and wrangled, going over the same ground they went over yesterday. Darrow and Crowe shouted at each other. Judge Caverly finally stopped it.

"Oh, go on with your argument," he said to the state's attorneys and Marshall then resumed the reading of the law books and decisions from many courts in many states.

Loeb Marks Calendar Each Day Nearer to "Patches"

Chicago, July 31.—A calendar hangs in the cell of Dick Loeb. Each day a pencil makes a cross in each square. Another day in court and another day in the county jail is gone.

Near it hangs another picture. It is of "Patches" Germaine Reinhardt, "the girl who won't forget."

"No matter what Dickie has done or when he'll come out, I'll be waiting for him and I'll be his friend no matter what everyone else does."

Patches thus pledged herself recently.

POLICE IN TWO PISTOL BATTLES WITH BANDITS

New York, July 31.—Following a pistol battle today between five bandits and three policemen in the lower East Side, a general alarm was sent to hospitals to watch for the injured members of the gang. The police believed two of them were wounded. Another pistol battle was waged in Brooklyn between five detectives and four men who attempted to escape with a stolen automobile.

CRAIG AND DE VALERA INVITED TO SEE GAMES

Belfast, Ire., July 31.—Invitations to attend the official opening of the Tailteann games, which have been sent to Sir James Craig, premier of Ulster, and Eamonn de Valera, recently released Republican leader who had been confined in prison by the Free State, probably will meet with a refusal in the case of the Ulster premier, it is understood in political circles here.

that Bernard Baruch, who knows European and American conditions, said just before he sailed the other day: "If the Dawes plan goes through, as I think it will, there will be five years of such prosperity for this country as the world has never seen. Europe will buy unlimited quantities of our products. And whereas in 'war prosperity' what they bought from us was burned up and destroyed in war, what they buy now will be used to rebuild, making every dollar they spent with us worth two dollars with them."

THE COUNTRY has the most gold of the world's gold, a big wheat crop, for which it will get an enormous price because of crop failure elsewhere. We came through the war intact, except for the spending of a few billions that the country can afford. The only thing that the nation lacks is a full supply of optimism and appreciation of its blessings.

HENRY FORD is satisfied with his property and contemplates printing on everyone of his products: "I will praise the Lord, for I am fearfully and wonderfully made."

During the first six months of this year he manufactured an average of five automobiles, trucks and tractors for every minute of the twenty-four hours. That is one every twelve seconds, setting a new record. You really have to praise Henry Ford and give him free advertising.

IF HE WILL now begin turning out all-metal flying machines at low prices and develop production of cheap dwellings with gardens in the rear, his name will be written above that famous "Abou." He ought to choose for his epitaph: "Here lies a man who made it possible for Americans to build a decent house, with a garage containing a car that will run, for $2,000 on the installment plan."

THE UNITED STATES brings suit against miners to prevent them working in the Grand Canyon, near Bright Angel Trail. But if gold is there, or silver or even copper, the miners will get it somehow. They would do that if the bright angels themselves came down the trail and tried to stop them.

They will feel sorry, later, when they look down and see Buddhists, Confucians, Shintotists, all in hell, beckoning for a drop of water, which they won't get. If they really believe that our missionaries saved them from hell fire, which undoubtedly they do, the Japanese Christians should love us, no matter what we do. All that a man gets he will give for his life—how much more for salvation, with immortality.

HYLAN PRAISES BEAUTY OF HEARST RANCH

New York Mayor Describes California Trip as Almost Like Dream

New York, July 31.—Mayor Hylan who returned from a visit to California, gave to the press the following glowing account of his trip:

"I am returning from the most pleasant and interesting trip I ever had. While two or three days crossing the country were a little warm, nevertheless, it is almost like a dream. Mrs. Hylan has been in California before and was quite familiar with and able to tell me about many interesting and historical places on the trip, which I might have overlooked.

DELIGHTFUL VISIT.

"For several years Mr. and Mrs. Hearst have invited us to visit them on their ranch in the mountains of California. It always seemed as if we could not spare the time, as there was always something to do. We finally concluded to take the time and accepted, and had a most delightful visit—one which we will long remember.

"When Mr. Hearst's party arrived in San Francisco, Mayor Rolfe, the five-cent-fare Mayor of the Pacific coast, met us and gave us a hearty welcome. We visited their wonderful city hall and other points in this interesting city. We proceeded by train about 250 miles to San Luis Obispo and then by motor over fifty miles along the Pacific coast to the Hearst castle, La Cuesta Encantada, meaning the enchanted hill.

WARMLY WELCOMED.

"There Mr. and Mrs. Hearst were met by their other four children (George, the oldest son and his wife being in the Hearst party). Don Pancho, the old ranch man, who has been with the Hearsts for over fifty years; also many other employes and members of their families. I have never seen anyone receive the affectionate reception as did both Mr. and Mrs. Hearst.

"The employes on the ranch simply idolized both of them. The Hearsts seemed as happy as they were at the birthday dinner given to Mrs. Hearst, with all their children and many of the old employes about the festive board.

"The Hearsts are very hospitable people. A clergyman and several others came to the mountain top. Mrs. Hearst saw them on her way to lunch and insisted on their dining with her, which they did.

"The hilltop of one of the many hills on the ranch, where they live, is crowned by beautiful buildings of Spanish architecture surrounded by beautiful gardens of ever blooming gorgeous flowers and orange, peach and cherry trees.

LIKE OLD CATHEDRAL.

"The interior of these houses, one of which presents the aspect of an old cathedral in Southern Spain, and the other three—guest houses—are furnished and finished to correspond. Old doors and door frames, mantles, beds, tables, cabinets, priceless wood carvings, paintings, tapestries from famous palaces in Italy, dating back to the thirteenth and sixteenth centuries, are a part of the finish and furnishings.

"At San Simeon, a little village at the foothills of the ranch, where many of the workmen live, Mr. Hearst is going to erect a Catholic Church, also a building where entertainments can be held and moving pictures exhibited for the pleasure of the people of San Simeon and vicinity.

"Their ranch consists of over 100,000 acres, about 12,000 head of Jersey, Hereford and Durham cattle, with deer (several of them white), elk and horses. You can see on this ranch a thousand head of cattle grazing peacefully on a thousand hills.

MR. HEARST BUSY.

"With this ranch and his Mexican ranch with 40,000 head of cattle, his twenty-four newspapers, nine magazines, two of which are in England, along with his moving picture industry, all of which he keeps personally in touch with, he is very busy; and if anyone thinks Mr. Hearst has much time for play or vacation he is very much mistaken.

"From the ranch we went to Los Angeles by motor and train where Acting Mayor Woaman met us. We spent a pleasant day in Los Angeles, visiting the department stores, Hollywood and Long Beach, where I had a very pleasant visit with Mr. Ummle, a Retchedo farmer, and left next day for home.

"The country West of the Rockies, particularly the Pacific slope, is very dry and sorely in need of water. If the federal authorities at Washington could get their powerful bosses, the international bankers in Wall Street, and let them collect some of the billions loaned to foreign countries and use it to help conserve water for irrigation and other necessary purposes in the West they would be doing something for the people of the Unitd States. However, such a policy would not benefit the financial interests."

PEGGY JOYCE VOWS TO BE "OLD MAID" FOR REST OF HER LIFE

5TH TRIP TO ALTAR TOO STORMY

Count Retorts She Told Him He Was Only Her Second

New York, July 31 (Universal).—Here is Peggy Hopkins Joyce's own story of her latest effort to be happy though married, an effort which was wrecked at the fifth milestone when Peggy filed a separation suit against Count Gosta Morner, prospective toothpaste millionaire and Swedish nobleman, who led her to the altar at Atlantic City on July 2 last.

The count had beaten Peggy by a few hours, however, and had filed a petition asking annulment of the marriage on the ground that his much married wife had committed fraud when she coyly told him she only had had two previous husbands.

"Imagine how I felt when I discovered I was the fifth," said the count.

The same reporters who had interviewed the count in his lawyer's office took themselves uptown to Peggy's luxurious flat to hear what a countess will say about a husband who treats her that way.

THINKS COUNT BROKE.

"He will have a long, hard fight for annulment. Personally I think the poor boy is broke and thinks I'll settle out of court."

Miss Joyce, as she now prefers to be called, was sitting on a Louis XIV bed in a batik kimono blotched with red, purple and yellow. She clasped her hands over her knees and arched her eyebrows.

"Domestic troubles," she commented, "are so interesting. I don't intend to let any man walk over me, especially when I am the man of the family, paying all the bills while he sits doing nothing."

The remark was the first indication that Count Morner was no longer in the toothpaste business. But Peggy said that he resigned from the Chicago company in which he was interested, soon after their marriage.

DENIES SEEKING TITLE.

"He said I married him for his title," she continued. "That is not so. I could have married much better titles. Titles in this country don't mean anything anyhow. I prefer to be called Peggy Hopkins Joyce, not the Countess Morner.

"It really was a case of love at first sight. I was quite keen about him, but have lost all respect for him now. I don't love him any more, though I did. I have learned one thing. That is that I am going to be an old maid for the rest of my life. I intend from now on to center my attentions on plans for a stage appearance in the Fall."

Peggy's remarks were prompted by quotations from an interview had with Count Morner as he discussed with his lawyers the details of his annulment action. The count had said that besides fibbing to him on the number of her marriages, his bride had developed a bad temper and that she had used improper language in public.

FRIENDS READY TO AID.

From time to time during the interview Miss Joyce was interrupted by calls from friends. At the end of one call Peggy laughed as she said:

"He'd better be careful how he treats me, or my friends will teach him a lesson."

She did, however, evince some interest in the clothes her husband wore in his lawyers' office. When told he appeared in a double-breasted gray suit, Peggy nodded knowingly.

"That suit is among the things I am going to get back if I have my way in court. I bought it, and—

"I might want it for my sixth husband."

The Count has been stopping at the Yale Club in line with this he said, in replying to questions:

"Not long ago the Countess left me, going to Atlantic City for three days with a girl friend. Every week she would spend several nights away from me, and it was impossible to get in touch with her. She has a bad temper and uses language in public that hurts me very much."

The Counts's annulment papers were filed in the County clerk's office. They were sealed immediately.

INFANTS IN ARMS; UP ON LIQUOR LAW CHARGE

While each held an infant in their arms, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Grzelczyk of Williams street, Chelsea, were arraigned before United States Commissioner Storey today and held in $500 bail for a hearing on charges of violating the liquor laws. Joseph Krulekowski, their employer, proprietor of "Al's Lunch," on Williams street, was held in similar bail on the same charge. The trio were arrested after Federal agents claim they purchased intoxicants at the lunch room from a thirteen-year-old girl and later from Mrs. Grzelczyk.

DIVORCEE NEAR DEATH BY GAS POISONING

Denver, July 31.—A beautiful young woman found near death in the gas-filled kitchenette of an exclusive apartment house, in the fashionable Capitol Hill residential district, has been identified as the former wife of Joseph H. Cooper, Kansas City banker.

The woman, Mrs. Gertrude Louise Ramsey Cooper, who now is in a hospital, is, in the opinion of police, the victim of a probable murder attempt. She has not regained consciousness since being removed from the room and police investigators have been unable to gain any information as to the cause of her condition.

Mrs. Cooper today was identified by her mother, Mrs. Margaret O'Reilly Casey, as her second daughter.

Mrs. Casey maintained her belief that her daughter had not attempted to end her life, and Patrick Casey, her stepfather, was firm in the the belief that Mrs. Cooper was the victim of foul play.

Paul Ramsey, twelve years old, son of Mrs. Cooper by her first marriage, declared he saw his former stepfather J. H. Cooper of Kansas City, in Denver Tuesday night.

According to Mrs. Casey the Coopers were divorced in Wichita, Kan., four years ago.

YANKEE FLIERS DELAYED BY THICK FOG

Start From Kirkwall for Iceland Waits Upon Lifting of the Mists

On Board Cruiser Richmond, Houton Bay, off Scotland, July 31, via Radio (I.N.S.).—A thick, low-hanging fog delayed the departure of the United States Army round-the-world fliers from Kirkwall for Iceland today.

Lieutenant Lowell M. Smith, American flight commander, and his five companions, who arrived from Brough, England, yesterday had a fine night's rest and were up early scanning the horizon and awaiting word from the American patrol ships regarding weather conditions.

The distance from Kirkwall to Hornfjord Iceland, is about 500 miles. Two United States destroyers, the Reid and Billingsley, are stationed between this port and the Iceland coast.

Two stops are to be made at Iceland, the second being at Reykjavik.

The cruiser Richmond, flagship of the guard, will follow the fliers from Houton Bay.

GET HOURLY REPORTS.

Hourly reports on weather conditions were received on board the Richmond by wireless.

Reports from Iceland said fog was general in that district and it would be dangerous to try to find the coast.

As the day advanced the weather here cleared somewhat and the airmen grew hopeful that they could start before afternoon.

"We are restless and want to get away at the earliest possible moment," said Lieutenant Smith.

The aviators planned to take carrier pigeons with them in the event they got out of touch with the convoying cruisers and destroyers. They will attempt to keep in communication with the ships by wireless.

TAKE NO CHANCES.

Lieutenant Erik Nelson said that the men did not fear the fog, but did not wish to take any chances that might appear foolhardy.

"The fog appears to be very low and I think we could fly over it," said Nelson. "But our departure must depend upon reports from Iceland. We are not going to invite dangers which might lead to disaster."

The aviators and their airplanes are in fine condition. The machines were carefully overhauled. It was found that the trip up the coast from Brough had not strained any of the parts.

Acting War Secretary Will Fly to Boston

Liege, Belgium, July 31.—Dr. Serge Voronoff, famous French surgeon, addressing a scientific Congress, claimed it would be possible to increase the yield of wool by applying his gland transplantation operation to sheep.

Although the operation cannot be performed successfully on all sheep, he said, he hoped to be able to create a special breed by repeating the process of the direct descendants of a certain number of picked specimens. The experiment was already being made, he announced, on a flock of 3,000 sheep in Algeria, and on a number of goats.

COURT UPHOLDS ACTS OF DRY RAIDERS

Acts of prohibition enforcement agents in conducting raids are upheld in a decision handed down by the United States Circuit Court of appeals, sitting in Boston.

Under the decision the dry agents are not held to be trespassers when they destroy mash and other evidence in conducting a raid.

This overturns district court rulings previously made in this State, though in the present instance the district court's findings, being the same as those of the circuit courts, are sustained. The question was raised in the appeal of Daniel M. Hurley of Worcester.

Hurley, in the district court, made motions that the evidence against him be thrown out of court because the agents who raided his dwelling destroyed mash and thereby became trespassers. The court finds no virtue in the appeal. It says, in part:

"The officers were justified in seizing the fermenting mass which they found in the boilers for its evidentiary value to sustain the charge of unlawful manufacture, but they had no right to destroy the same without an order of the court. This act, however, did not destroy the evidentiary value of the other property seized nor make the seizure of the same unlawful.

SIGNAL TAMPERED, TRAIN NEAR WRECK

Robanna, Ill., July 31.—Careful observation of Engineer Miller whose long experience has taught him the precise location of nearly every signal on the road, prevented the Louisville & Nashville train No. 53, eastbound out of St. Louis, from crashing into a siding track near here with the possible destruction of the train and disaster to the passengers on its seven cars.

Failing to see any light on the siding switch, Engineer Miller slowed down the train, which ordinarily passes the spot at forty miles an hour, until he came close to the switch, and sensing something wrong, brought the train to a stop. Investigation disclosed the siding switch open, and the red danger light bound tightly with paper.

19 BULGARIANS ARE SHOT BY GREEKS

Sofia, Bulgaria, July 31.—Nineteen Bulgarian peasants were shot by a squad of Greek military men in Grecia Macedonia, according to the Bulgarian Telegraphic Agency.

Another group of fifteen Bulgars were seized and taken to the same spot, the peasants said, but their fate was unknown.

$20,000 BANK'S MONEY TAKEN AS A 'LOAN'

R. I. Clerk Used Funds in Stock Deals, According to Revelations by Brokers

Bristol, R. I., Aug. 1.—Bonds and other securities valued at $20,000 were "borrowed" from the local branch of the Industrial Trust Company to cover marginal stock transactions by Leo B. Curran, a clerk.

Curran is also a member of the Bristol School Committee, secretary-treasurer of the Bristol Board of Fire Engineers and a leading member and former secretary of Bristol Council, Knights of Columbus.

The missing securities were restored to the Industrial Trust Company as a result of information given voluntarily to the State Bank Commissioner by officials of the J. J. Hackett Company, a Providence brokerage house, who were suspicious of Curran's transactions with them.

Officials of the company questioned Curran closely and say he admitted "borrowing" the securities from the bank in which he worked to cover his stock of transactions with them.

When the brokers called for more margin from Curran he sent his wife to them with the securities in question. Later she asked their return, which aroused the broker's suspicion and they sent for Curran. The trust company issued a statement saying it would not suffer loss.

Neighbors of Curran say he has been spending much money of late, having bought a house and automobile recently. It is understood he is trying to raise money to straighten out his financial tangle.

PERSIA READY TO SETTLE FOR IMBRIE CASE

Government Assures U. S. That "No Ground for Anxiety" Exists

Washington, July 31.—The Persian government has assured the State Department it will take steps with regard to the Imbrie incident that will leave "no ground whatever for any anxiety on the part of the United States government."

Replying to the American communication demanding full protection for American citizens in Persia and threatening to break off diplomatic relations as a result of the killing of Vice-Consul Robert Imbrie and the subsequent attack upon his widow, the Persian government declared it would "repair the incident and fulfill the points that are suggested" by the United States.

The reply said also that the Imperial Government "is making extreme efforts in pursuing and punishing the persons who caused and perpetrated the killing of Mr. Imbrie and it will not hesitate to take any kind of steps in this connection."

Concerning the question of security of American Nationals in Persia, and particularly American official representatives, the communication says:

"The Persian government has always considered and will continue to consider this as its positive duty and gives assurance that it will by no means hesitate to fulfill this duty."

Darwin Theory 'Rot,' Solons to Penalize Teaching of It

Atlanta, Ga., July 31.—The Georgia House of Representatives today had before it a favorable report from a committee on a bill to withdraw all State funds from any school at which the Darwin of any other similar theory of evolution is taught.

Representative Pope styled the theory of evolution "rotten stuff." Representative McCrory said if he was descended from a monkey he was ashamed of it, but didn't think he was.

Representative Covington said he didn't believe a wagon load of mud could be left in the road and "by its own inherent evolutionary powers" become something all dressed up and running to the Legislature."

Mrs. Charles K. Cobb, Jr.

OF the "younger-married" coterie adding to the gayeties along the North Shore are Mr. and Mrs. Charles K. Cobb, Jr., who are occupying Mrs Robert de Wolfe Sampson's cottage at Manchester Cove.

As Elsie Nichols, Mrs. Cobb held the reins of Vincent Club leadership a few years ago, a position that she filled with marked success. Her wedding to the Harvard, '11, man was solemnized last October, a large throng filling the pews of the Arlington Street Church for the occasion. Since their marriage the young people have been making their home on Beacon Hill.

MANY there were who enjoyed the rainbow fete, staged at "Blynman Farm," the William H. Coolidge estate at Magnolia.

But there were few who liked the fete any better than little Mary Humphrey Coolidge daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Coolidge, Jr.

This cherubic young lady was especially delighted with the balloons and the Punch and show, though she was just a trifle bored with the Mah Jong and bridge and the sale of all sorts of rather "grown up" articles.

FAVORITE OF NORTH SHORE SOCIETY

Among the future belles who attended the rainbow fete held at the Coolidge estate in Magnolia, was little Mary Coolidge, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Coolidge, Jr.

Society Notes

All the North Shore, it seemed, turned out for this delightfully arranged al fresco affair, and a very tidy sum must have rolled its way into the coffers of the Boston Children's Friend Society.

THIS week the Montserrat Golf Club is the mecca for tennis devotees all along the Shore as well as elsewhere, for the annual tennis tournament began there on Monday.

This afternoon an especially large crowd will throng the clubhouse for the dansant being held there in connection with the matches.

GRAFTON W. MINOT of Boston was of the sojourners at White Sulphur Springs who attended the buffet supper held the other evening at Kate's Mountain Club in the rustic lodge half way up the mountain.

Mrs. J. Montgomery Sears is visiting Mrs. Joseph H. Choate at Stockbridge.

Mrs. Charles L. Harding, who is spending the Summer at Newport, has registered at the Country Club there for the season.

Louis B. McCagg, Jr., and P. Mason Sears were among the ushers at the wedding of Miss Katherine Curtin White and William Douglas Burden solemnized on Monday at the Albany home of the bride's uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Harry W. Sage.

Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Conway Felton of Philadelphia are visiting his brother and sister-in-law, the Samuel M. Feltons 3d at the latter's Summer place in Manchester.

MANY AT FUNERAL OF NEWSBOY'S FRIEND

Funeral services for the late Hazen W. Plaisted, former head of the Boston Newsboys Reading Room, was held at his late home, No. 14 Madison street, Roxbury. A large number of relatives and friends, including many newsboys, attended. Burial was at Mount Hope Cemetery.

Many floral tributes were sent from different parts of the country by former newsboys who knew Mr. Plaisted during his twenty odd years' connection with the Reading Room. Wesley Hersey, the thirteen-year-old newsboy baritone of Lynn, sang. The circulation departments of all the Boston newspapers were represented at the funeral.

ALLIED BOARD HAS REACHED AGREEMENT

French Compromise Proposals Accepted by Committee in London Today

London, July 31.—Committee No. 1 of the allied reparation conference has reached an agreement on the French compromise proposals, it was learned from a semi-official source.

London, July 31 (I.N.S.)—The allied reparation conference again swung perilously near the shoals of disaster today.

Committees No. 1 and 2 took up the French proposals for safeguarding the holders of German loan bonds while the members of the inter-allied reparation commission met informally. The commissioners are here to sign an agreement with Germany, but Premier MacDonald does not want to summon the Germans to London until the allies have agreed among themselves.

It was reported that Premier Herriot of France is threatening to return home unless the French proposals are accepted. But it is generally believed if the proposals are rejected both J. A. Logan, the American observer, and Premier Theunis of Belgium will step in with a new compromise to keep the conference alive.

The British do not want the French to have latitude for amending the Dawes plan.

There was lively debate behind closed doors during the day.

POLICE ON GUARD AFTER REFORMATORY RIOT

Rahway, N. J. July 31.—The New Jersey State Reformatory here was virtually under martial law, with State Police on guard in the institution where a majority of the 500 youthful inmates had balked every effort of guards to secure order and engaged in what the superintendent, Dr. Frank Moore, described as a "race war."

During the fighting dozens of shots were fired, large sticks of wood were hurled, dishes thrown and the dining hall transformed into a heap of broken chairs and tables.

Three guards and two inmates were injured.

Brockton, July 31.—The demand of the shoe manufacturers for a 10 per cent. wage reduction is to come before the State Board of Arbitration in the form of twelve different hearing, it was announced tonight. GIRL'S ESSAY ON SAFETY HABITS TAKES PRIZE

Claremont, N. H., July 31.—Esther Wolfe, a pupil in the seventh grade of the North street school, has been awarded first prize for New Hampshire in the national safety campaign. Her essay on "Safety Habits I Should Learn," follows in part:

You are the person who must think of safety first. Accidents are always happening just because of carelessness.

Here are a few safety habits I should learn:

I should let automobiles, motor-cycles and wagons go past first.

I should never try to dodge or run if I am caught in the middle of a street with vehicles coming in both directions.

I should never play games in the middle of the streets nor chase my ball before first seeing that no wagons or automobiles are coming. It is better to save your life than your ball.

I should never cross the street except at crossings and always stop and look both ways before crossing the street.

I should never ride a bicycle through heavy traffic.

I should never try to steal rides on the back of a truck, street car or wagon. I may jump or fall directly in front of a passing vehicle. Stolen rides often cost too much.

I should never hurry. It is better to be a few minutes late than to be a cripple for life.

I should never jump on or off a moving elevator, trolley or train. I should be careful how I get on or off a street car.

NEW ENGLAND WEEK AID IS PLEDGED

Purchasing Agents' Association Joins Sales Managers in Furthering Plans

The New England Purchasing Agents' Association, made up of 300 members with a combined buying power of more than $100,000,000 annually, has voted to give wholehearted support to New England Week to be held in Boston, September 15 to 20.

At a meeting in the Federal Reserve Bank Building a committee was appointed to confer with a committee of the Sales Managers' Association which took similar action last week. The joint committee will formulate plans for active participation in the drive to sell New England products to New Englanders.

A general discussion showed that the purchasing agents were 100 per cent. in favor of the booming of home products. They were enthusiastic in their welcome of John S. Lawrence, chairman of the general New England Week committee.

"New England Week is not all enthusiasm," said Mr. Lawrence in the course of his remarks. "We need enthusiasm, of course. New England Week is a sincere economic move of labor, management and capital to get closer together to solve many of the perplexing problems with which New England is struggling today in its effort to meet the changing economic conditions of the world.

BIG PURCHASING POWER.

"The purchasing power of the people of New England is enormous, and this power should be directed as far as practical to the employment of our own people and resources.

"We held in this room a week ago a splendid meeting of sales managers, which formed committees and planned an energetic sales campaign, but this would be incomplete without the organization and interest of the purchasers.

"This meeting represents the purchasers of many millions of dollars of products. We do not ask you to buy New England products when it is to your advantage to buy others, but we do ask you to look for New England products and give them preference whenever you consistently can, believing it to be in the interests of your business and yourselves.

"Until recently many of you have given this subject of buying from New England little attention, but I am sure you will all agree that it is to your best interests to have your neighbor busy and happy; that it is to your best interest that your town and city in New England should be prosperous, her traditions maintained, her plants kept in good condition.

FOR INCREASED TRADE.

"We hope that the buyers and sellers of New England may become better acquainted each with the other; that you may discuss your problems frankly and openly. You are not competitors. You are associated. One takes on where the other leaves off.

"You need to have the goods made right. You need to have the goods used right, and through co-operation I am sure many problems will be solved which will effect an increase in the trade of New England, and through increased trade comes prosperity and contentment.

Paul R. Brennan, president of the association, representing the Stafford Company, weaving machinery, Readville, presided.

The committee appointed to arrange for active participation of the association in New England Week plans is made up of J. G. Geddes of the H. K. Porter Company, who was appointed chairman; President Brennan, E. M. Bowry of the Simplex Wire & Cable Company, Cambridge; J. J. McPhillips, Seaman & Cobb Company, Boston; E. B. Botsford of the A. C. Lawrence Leather Company; H. C. French, Wamsetta Mills, New Bedford; F. P. Flynn, American Sugar Refinery Co., of Boston; G. Herbert Walker, Houghton & Dutton and C. A. Clement of the Library Bureau.

Remarks were made by Chester W. Dailey, F. A. Gray, E. B. Botsford, T. M. Desmond, E. E. Young, G. Herbert Walker, E. N. Bowry, A. Keith Eaton and P. A. Houghton.

Wi[illegible] of the Boston Latin School, is the recipient of first prize for Massachusetts in the 1923 national safety essay contest held by the Highway Education Board of Washington. LODGE HAS SEVEN AND A HALF HOURS' SLEEP

Senator Henry Cabot Lodge had a comfortable night at the Charlesgate Hospital, Cambridge, where he is recuperating from an operation. The bulletin issued by Dr. John H. Cunningham after his visit today said:

"Condition continues satisfactory. Had good night's sleep; slept seven and a half hours."

those in the street as well as that of those driving cars.

It's your job.

Individual interest, constant care are needed.

Make the highways safe for yourself and family. Join the I PLAY SAFE CLUB. Enrollment is free and open to all.

Just clip the pledge from the Boston American, mail it with a two cent stamp inclosed to "I Play Safe Editor, Boston American, Winthrop square, Boston, Mass.," and an emblem will be mailed to you for display on the windshield of your car.

As soon as you sign a pledge you will automatically become a member in good standing of the I PLAY SAFE CLUB. No dues are levied. The only thing expected of you is to live up to the promises in your pledge of moderate driving, obedience to those charged with enforcement of traffic regulations, courtesy to others on the road and an unflagging desire to be careful.

Display a safety emblem on your windshield.

Get the I PLAY SAFE CLUB habit.

GOODWIN LAUDS PLAN.

Get into the I PLAY SAFE CLUB frame of mind.

State Registrar Frank A. Goodwin says it is all a state of mind. He says resolution to exercise care is better than any and all mechanical safety devices.

He says when drivers think right and keep their wits about them there will be fewer accidents and greater safety and pleasure on the roads. Pedestrians share the responsibility. They, too, must keep their wits about them. Careless persons in the street are responsible for many accidents. Don't lose sight of that.

Don't delay. Fill out a pledge today and mail it to the Boston American. Delay is fatal. Delay and indifference have been the Grim Reaper's greatest allies in automobile mishaps.

Line up and sign up.

Give the drive your moral and individual support. Become an active member in the fight against deaths and injury on the highways of New England.

Don't be a slacker.

Don't think the other fellow ought to do it all.

Don't be a road hog.

Heroic measures are needed. Everybody must take hold to check automobile accidents.

Refrain from overspeeding.

Discourage reckless driving.

Shun the cut-in habit.

Aid the injured.

Develop caution.

Get busy.

POLICE DOUBT POISON TALE OF NURSE MAID

Elizabeth, N. J., July 31.—Anna Sobin, seventeen-year-old nursemaid to Howard Rothenberg of Newark, who was murdered at the family's Summer cottage at Windham, N. Y., last Summer, was reported as resting easily at the Elizabeth Hospital. The girl had been missing but returned with a story that two men in a closed automobile had carried her away and attempted to force poison down her throat.

Police do not place much credence in the girl's story. Physicians declare there are no traces of poison in her stomach.

GRAND JURY TO VIEW TOPSY'S TINY NOSE

Organ She Says Was Broken by Police to Continue as Court Exhibit

Chicago, July 31.—The grand jury will view the nose Miss Rosetta Duncan, comedienne, says was broken by Charles Widlock, Cicero policeman, July 4, when her brother Harold was arrested for a traffic rule violation.

Widlock was held to the grand jury on a charge of assaulting with intent to kill and his bond fixed at $1,000 by Magistrate Henry G. Williams in Evanston.

Cases against two other policemen and Chief Svoboda of Cicero, who are accused by the actress of participating in the assault, were continued to August 29.

Miss Duncan testified she was beaten by the officers when she attempted to "joke" about her brother's arrest, but they and their witnesses said she became abusive and kicked, bit and scratched them.

BOBBY LEACH KEEPS PLANS SECRET

Is One of Few Men Who Ever Survived Such an Adventure

Buffalo, July 31.—Attended by much secrecy, Bobby Leach is completing arrangements to go over Niagara Falls this week in a rubber ball of special construction.

Because of the possibility of police interference, Leach will not reveal the exact time the experiment will be made. Neither will he tell the place where the ball will be rolled into the river, with him inside.

"All I will say is that I will go over Niagara Falls during the week ending August 2," said Leach to a reporter for the Boston American. "And I expect to emerge from the big rubber ball alive."

Leach is one of few persons who ever went over the falls and survived his experience. On July 25, 1911, he went over the Horseshoe Falls in a steel barrel.

In describing the ball he will use this week, Leach said: "It will be of the thickness of an ordinary large automobile tire and will be constructed with a hammock inside, in which I will recline. I expect to have the ball placed in the river above the falls on the Canadian side and figure it will be thrown clear, so that it will drop safely in the river below."

On his trip over the falls in a barrel, Leach escaped with a few bruises and slight scratches. The barrel fell into the whirlpool without mishap. The barrel circled the pool five times before being caught by a pole and dragged ashore. Only ten minutes elapsed from the time it entered the river until Leach emerged.

Week-End Trip to Cape Cod

CAPE COD CALLS YOU FOR WEEK-END.

By THE AMERICAN TOURIST.

TERRACE GABLES

The secret of Cape Cod's popularity as a vacation or week-end resort is because it offers more variety of recreation than almost any territory within easy reach of Boston. It appeals alike to the fisherman, golfer, bather, yachtsman, tramper, horseback rider, painter, targeter, hunter and the children.

Two motor routes enter the Cape, one coming down through the woods from Plymouth and following the Cape Cod Bay shore as far as Orleans, the other entering at Buzzards Bay, running down to Falmouth and there swinging east along the south shore of the Cape. These two macadam roads join at Orleans and continue as a single boulevard to Provincetown. They are, of course, connected at many points by cross roads.

CHOICE OF TWO ROUTES

There is a choice, as I have said, of two routes. First. With the Brunswick Hotel, corner of Boylston and Clarendon streets for a starting point, go right into Commonwealth ave., on to Jamaica Way, through Forest Hills, Mattapan, East Milton, Quincy, North Weymouth, Hingham and North Cohasset to Cohasset.

Just beyond the silent policeman in Cohasset, at the stone church, turn left and go about three blocks where you will find Polly's Tea Room, a most attractive place, delicious food expertly cooked at reasonable rates. A gem of a place with private dining rooms for parties.

You will find everything from Fords to Pierce Arrows parked at Polly's front door and all delighted with the food and service. Try her Chicken a la King or Home-made Pastry and you will thank me.

HUMAROCK BEACH

From Cohasset you go to North Scituate, Egypt, Scituate Centre, Greenbush, Marshfield Hills, Sea View, from which is reached Humarock Beach. Humarock Station is on the right. Go straight ahead, then turn left to Humarock Beach and the Humarock Inn famous for its good chicken and lobster dinners. A fine beach for a swim or for a picnic ground.

Straight through to Marshfield Center, with the Marshfield P. O. on the left. Turn right into Moraine street and at fork 40.7 keep left still on Moraine street.

Turn left for Brant Rock. A beautiful crescent beach with fine white sand and surf. Try one of Mr. Mahoney's fish dinners at the Brant Rock House—Quality and Quantity. You will want a nap on his piazza afterwards. The waves come right up to the steps. This house is a splendid choice for a vacation resort.

On through to Duxbury, Island Creek and Kingston to Plymouth.

ANOTHER ROUTE

Second route to Plymouth. The second way, starting out the same as the first through to Quincy and in Quincy Square keep straight ahead with the trolley on Hancock street to Weymouth, Accord and Hanover.

Maybe you are ready to eat by now and if so try the Pentooset Inn. J. B. Rich, former manager of Cutler's Sea View House at Hampton Beach, is running the Pentooset this year and running it well. He is welcoming all his old friends and making new ones through his attractive place, excellent food, and fine hospitality.

On through Kingston to Plymouth and Bournehurst at Buzzard's Bay. You will certainly want to stop at Bournehurst, the famous dance hall—a real New York orchestra, perfect floor and the cool breezes and always interesting specialties.

For instance, next Wednesday the Eastern State championship of ballroom dancing with Lingerie Revue and movie contest. Three famous orchestras. $1200 in prizes.

IDEAL TRIP.

Bournehurst is the ideal trip for a Saturday afternoon and is also excellent for an evening's entertainment. On through Sagamore, Sandwich, East Sandwich, West Barnstable, Barnstable, Cummaquid, Yarmouthport, Yarmouth, Dennis, East Dennis, No. Brewster, Brewster, E. Brewster, Orleans, Eastham, No. Eastham, Wellfleet.

The Big Chief Dance Pavilion is here and is extremely popular for Summer vacations. The largest dance hall on the lower end of the Cape with an excellent orchestra. On through South Truro, Truro, North Truro where you find the Highland House and cottages situated on a bluff overlooking the sea. The perfect place for a day, or your entire vacation. Nine excellent holes for golf which if you play once, you will want to play there again. E. Hayes Small, the manager, is a real host and the food and service at the Highland House is the best.

Provincetown—66.9. At the tip of the Cape, famous in history as the Pilgrims' first landing place, and where a beautiful monument has been erected commemorating this event.

RENDEZVOUS FOR ARTISTS.

Provincetown is a rendezvous for artists, who may be daily seen painting views which interest them. Provincetown may also be reached by steamer from Boston, which makes a wonderful day's sail. There are a number of hotels accommodating the summer tourists and the all [illegible] ant House near the railroad station. You will find a very reasonable and convenient stopping place. Then there is the Atlantic House in the center of the town, which is very conveniently located. Either of these places will make a very good stopping place while here.

Returning to Boston we use the same route back to Orleans 27.2 from Provincetown. Going through South Orleans, Chatham, Harwichport, West Harwich, West Dennis, South Yarmouth, West Yarmouth and Hyannis. Here you will find the Bay View Inn, to which you will be sure to return once you have enjoyed those delicious dishes served by Joseph Murphy, formerly chef at the Wianno Club.

From Hyannis, we continue on to Centreville, where you will find the Wequaquet Lake Inn, a beautiful spot on an inland lake, so large that it is unbelievable that there is such a lake on the Cape, with shores like the ocean along Cape Cod, good bathing and fishing. You will want to try one of the lobster, chicken or steak dinners.

Osterville, our next stop, we find East Bay Lodge where you can have dinner and if you have been fortunate enough to make your reservations in advance may secure accommodations for the night. It is always cool and comfortable and once you have been entertained here you will look forward to the next opportunity of making a longer stay.

Mashpee, but a few miles from Hyannis, where the Hotel Attaquin, under the management of J. J. McCann, serves a wonderful clam bake every Sunday at 2:00 p. m. If you have not indulged in a clam bake this season then you better try one and if you have already tried some one else's you will want to have it here and compare it with the others.

WONDERFUL VIEW.

Continue on to Falmouth and before going into Falmouth you will want to make the trip to Falmouth Heights for the purpose of securing that wonderful view of Martha's Vineyard across Vineyard Sound from Terrace Gables. It is charged that she thus secured 103 of the jewels.

Unsafe Electrical Wiring Blamed for 500 Mine Deaths

Washington, July 31 (Universal).—The greater number of mine disasters are due to the use of unsafe open-type electrical equipment, the Department of Commerce announced.

It is estimated that 26 coal mine disasters, resulting in a loss of 500 lives, have been caused by improper electrical apparatus.

Electrical current can cause accidents in coal mines by shock to persons, by igniting powder, by igniting gas, by igniting coal dust and by setting fire to inflammable material, such as timber and coal. A great many of these accidents are preventable if the proper material is used.

MAIL ROBBER IS SLAIN BY BRAVE CLERK OF 22

Opens Fire When Two Demand $35,000 Bank Funds at East Orange, N. J.

East Orange, N. J., July 31 (I.N.S.)—A robber was shot to death here today while trying to seize a mail pouch believed to contain about $35,000 in Federal Reserve bank funds at the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western Railway station. Another robber escaped in a taxicab.

Eugene Stack, a young mail clerk, whose coolness and courage prevented the robbery, was shot in the leg before he shot and killed the robber.

The two robbers, well dressed and wearing cloth caps, alighted from the train when it stopped at the station. They strolled towards the mail car.

Stack, who is only 22 years old, picked up the sacks and began to pile them on an elevator.

The two men approached him, both drawing revolvers.

"Give us the one with the money in it," said one of the robbers.

Without replying Stack drew his own revolver and began firing at the men. The robbers opened fire at the same time. One bullet grazed Stack's hand and another entered his leg.

The robbers taking fright, began to back away. As they did so, one of them fell with a bullet through his body.

She Goes and Gets Herself Shingled: "Ain't It the Grandest Feeling?"

By The Girl Reporter

MAYBE you think the hardest part of getting your hair bobbed is over when you've convinced friend husband or the stern and rockbound parents that's all that's needed to make you look like Venus.

But no. You're wrong again, as the old familiar saying goes.

LIKE A CROWD GOING TO A FIRE

Listen to the tale of one who, after sleepless nights of wondering if the back hair will look like a bald spot when shaved, and long hours before the unflattering mirror trying to get an idea of how your bumps will look when brought up and exposed to public view, took her courage in her hands and tried to get a shingle.

No wonder beards and long hair are coming back. The men folks have about as much chance of getting into a barber shop these days as a ten pound cake of ice has of lasting over night in the ancestral flat.

Next time you follow a crowd thinking you're going to get in on a good fire you'll land up in a queue in front of a hair emporium with a lot of women fighting to get in to be sheared of their crowning glory.

I tried to be in style but it's hard work in Boston, unless you can spare a week or two out of your life to devote to getting an appointment with a bobber.

Well, anyhow—here's how it all happened to me.

First I got around the difficulties of conquering ma and pa and discretion, and set out of a sunny morning to get the back of my neck shaved. I had a notion the shinglers of the Hub would be waiting scissors in hand for me and my two berries. All these signs about "Hair Shingling" in about every other shop window along the street had me kidded into thinking business was slack.

So I picked out a dizzy place with a name I guessed was French and thought would be a real treat like getting a double fudge nut marshmallow with whipped cream on pay day, and waltzed in.

A haughty dame gave me a glassy stare when I asked about a haircut, and said did I have an appointment.

"Un-uh," I answered in my best American, and she all but dropped me with a glare. From what I gathered you couldn't expect to get your hair cut there unless your family name was on the Pilgrim monument and you'd been applied for at birth, like getting into Wellesley.

So out I traipsed, trying not to show how inferior I felt for daring to go in to that holy of holies, and in about half a block got up courage to go into another one.

SHE SAID DID I HAVE AN APPOINTMENT

There was a fat lady ahead of me. Seemed like she wanted her hair cut to.

"But I've planned on it for this evening," she was saying, "my gown has been especially designed."

"Sorry, lady, we're full up," said the marcelled one behind the book and goes on polishing her fingernails.

I staged a fade out, guessing rightly that where all that avoirdupois failed, I'd have no chance, being somewhat skinny.

So on I tramped, being beaten to it by half a hundred females with the same idea I had. The great army of the unemployed looking for windows to wash wasn't in it with me looking for a pair of scissors with a barber behind them.

NOW IT'S A THRILL!

Finally, as the preacher says, I landed in a place resembling the stock exchange in its worst moments—only worse, as all the maniacs were women—and a cross between a dentist's assistant and the Queen of Sheba told me to have a chair and wait my turn.

The weary bones gave out and I collapsed onto the last vacant chair in the room.

Along [illegible] six barber chairs were in [illegible] swing. Black, red, yellow and different hair was falling in cascades to the floor worse than paper in a newspaper office. And there was an infernal noise.

Every woman in that place was telling those around her what John said when she broached the subject, and nobody was listening at all. And in the midst several buckets of salt tears fell unnoticed.

"How long have you been waiting, girlie?" questioned a thin voice on my left, and I turned around to see somebody's grandmother sitting on a stool with her sparse gray There's no place like this in Boston."

But there was grandma beside me chattering on for all she was worth—

Suddenly there was a scuffle and all the women in the room made a lurch for one barber chair that a flapper had just climbed out of. She sure was tickled over her locks draped over her shoulders waiting for the sacrifice.

"Not long—yet," I answered politely, being a respecter of old age even in the most difficult circumstances.

"Well, you know," she went on not noticing I'd said anything, "when my daughter-in-law came home the other night with her hair cut, I says to myself, 'Amanda, you're not going to be left behind'—and said so to pa. Say, he laughed.

"And why can't I have my hair bobbed if I want to, every one of my grandchildren have—and as I told Agatha——."

"Ta-ta, old egg," I muttered to myself — "you're plumb crazy. shingle; stood for ages turning around in front of a mirror, and smiling as if she was saying—"This will knock 'em dead."

Well, the winner in the lurch had got into the chair and was getting gagged and bound in several yards of sheets and towels, when she had a change of heart.

"Let me out," she kept muttering thru her hair, which the barber kept right on combing down over her face. But she couldn't help herself now.

"Eet iss too late, madame," the barber said between his teeth and whacked off all her back hair in one masterly stroke.

"Oh, oh," the lady kept moaning, "I shall never dare to go home."

This atmosphere was beginning to get in some heavy work on me, and cold feet was the least of my ailments about five minutes later when a barber yelled "Next" and looked hard at me.

"Gee, you're lucky," said a voice somewhere near me, and a large moist girl who ought to know better than ever to think of getting her hair cut leans out to congratulate me.

Funerals were more what I craved just then. All my insides had faded away and my legs wobbled so I was afraid I'd never get across the room.

But— and here's a funny thing about this bobbing business and women—I never once thought of running, which same, being the only way of keeping the golden tresses, etc., now attached to my head. No, sir. You keep right on going, and all the time you wish you were dead.

They bundled me up and tied me down and I felt the cold of the scissors on the back of my neck.

"Hey! Wait a sec!" I shouted—but it's no use. My back hair was gone—I could tell by the cold air that swept the bare area.

Didn't I wish I'd never come! And I wasn't the only one!

"Can't you do something?" a wild voice was crying somewhere down the line. "Can't you stick it on somehow? I'm afraid to go out looking like this!"

But all the answer she got was "Eet iss too late, madame;" and the scissors went snipping merrily on.

When they untied me, and handed me a mirror I hadn't the heart to look.

"No, thanks," I whispered feeling seasicker than that day I went to Revere—and wandered out of that place of torment and fury. I sure thought I was ruined for life then!

But now—Oh, boy!

Say, even tho it's too crowded to get a regular hair cut in style and all that—the biggest thrill is feeling the cold scissors snipping at the back of the good, old neck.

Shingled? I'll say—and ain't it the grandest feeling ever was?

LA FOLLETTE'S FIRST TEST IS IN NEVADA

Progressives Devote All Energy to Getting on Ballot There

Washington, July 31 (Universal).—La Follette progressive forces are devoting their energies to getting on the ballot in Nevada, where the election laws require the filing of a petition by independent candidates not later than August 5. The petition must be signed by 10 per cent. of the voters of the State.

The La Follette-Wheeler forces regard the Nevada situation as the first "hurdle" to be overcome in getting on the ballot in the several States and are looking to their efforts there as a test of the strength of the movement over the country.

August 12 a conference of progressive women will be held here. The call went out signed by Mrs. Mabel C. Costigan, member of the La Follette executive committee and temporary chairman of the conference; Mrs. Robert M. La Follette, wife of the candidate; Mrs. Gibson Gardner, M[illegible] Hall, Miss Isabel Kendig, Mrs. Basil Manly and Miss Ethel Smith of the Women's Trades Union League.

It is planned to form a committee of a hundred women from all States to work jointly with the La Follette-Wheeler committee to get women interested in the progressive ticket. The appeal will be made on the basis of the public record of the candidates.

The drive for money contributions has been started in earnest. Henry Rosenfelt of New York, who will conduct the money-raising campaign, has opened offices in a new building down town.

La Follette on G. O. P. Ticket in Wisconsin; Where's Coolidge?

Washington, July 31.—With Senator La Follette and his followers in control of the Republican organization in Wisconsin, Republican campaign managers are seeking means of putting the names of Coolidge and Dawes on the ballots for the November election in that state.

The Republican managers have been advised that La Follette electors will appear under the Republican emblem on the Wisconsin ballots, and that a vote of the Republican ticket in that state in November will be a vote for Senators La Follette and Wheeler. The question accordingly has been raised as to whether Mr. Coolidge and General Dawes should be listed as independent candidates.

DAVIS LINES UP WITH BRYAN ON 'DEFENCE DAY'

Agrees That the Idea Is "Unsound," a Demonstration With No Results

New York, July 31.—John W. Davis, Democratic Presidential candidate, announced today after his return from Maine that he was in entire accord with his running mate, Governor Bryan of Nebraska, regarding "Mobilization Day."

Davis declared that the view expressed by Governor Bryan that there was no necessity at this time for encouraging civilians to leave their occupations "for the purpose of engaging in what would be only a military demonstration without any practical educational effect" is entirely sound.

Washington, July 31.—Request for further information regarding the government's plans for observance of "Defense Day" was made in a telegram received today by President Coolidge from Governor Charles W. Bryan of Nebraska, the Democratic vice-presidential nominee. He recently announced he would not co-operate with the Federal authorities in some features of the celebration on the ground that it would amount to a military demonstration.

Dreamed About Gold; Took 'Nap Under Woman's Bed

New York, July 31.—Loud snoring under her bed woke Mrs. Ida Martin of Brooklyn. A policeman dragged Sol Crisusi from under the bed still sleeping.

"I had a dream," said Crisasi. "I pictured this house some way. I dreamed about gold. I don't know how I got here. I walk in my sleep."

A $20 gold note which Mrs. Martin's husband claimed as his own was found in his pocket.

JOHN COOLIDGE WILL STAY WITH HIS PARENTS

Washington, July 31.—Plans made by President and Mrs. Coolidge to permit their son, John, to attend the Citizens' Military Camp this Summer at Camp Devens, Mass., have been abandoned and John will remain with his parents at the White House until Fall, when he enters Amherst College.

John has been spending almost all of his time with his mother, and his presence was found to be such a comfort to her that the President finally decided it would be better for him to remain here until school opens. This would have been John's second Summer in Camp Devens, where he was taking training a year ago when his father became President.

FEARS MISSING SLOOP SEIZED; CREW SLAIN

Brother of One of Men Aboard Craft Asks Cutter to Search for It

New London, July 31.—Richard D. Hudson of Belleville, N. J., brother of one of the crew of the missing sloop Amateur, which disappeared after leaving Block Island for here July 16, said today he would ask Coast Guard officials to send the cutter Gresham to search for the missing craft.

Hudson, who is now at Block Island, believes the sloop is in the hands of someone other than her original crew, whom he thinks may have met with foul play.

Captain William O'Brien of Noank said he saw a boat he believed to be the Amateur on Sunday bound east and manned by two men nea Ram Island Light.

Aboard the Amateur on leavin Block Island were Harold D. Hudso Edward Riconda and John Rode all of Flushing, L. I.

3000 More Kiddies and Mothers to Be Guests of the Boston American

Mothers and children—

The last of the Boston American's 1924 free Nantasket Beac houtings for mothers and children will be given next Tuesday, when two Nantasket steamers leave Rowe's Wharf at 9:15 and 10:45 for a day of comfort and fun.

Three thousand more kiddies and their mothers or other older relatives will enjoy the cool sail down the harbor and back, the delicious Bushway ice cream and Berwick cake, the fresh pasteurized Cummings milk, Frank Archer's Moxie surprise, ocean bathing from the Sagamore baths and the fun and entertainment in Joe Stone's Paragon Park.

Captain Bickford of the Metropolitan Park police at Nantasket and his special "mothers and kiddies" detail of officers will guard the children from injury and aid agents of this newspaper in securing the time of their lives for the party.

The big, kindly, gray-uniformed men of Captain Bickford's detail have entered joyously into the spirit of the occasion on every one of this seasons' trip. The kiddies and their mothers think they're grand.

Here's a final instruction:

If your tickets call for a trip on the 9:15 boat, don't wait for the 10:45 boat; be on the wharf at 10 Tuesday morning.

POLITICS IS BIG ISSUE BEFORE A. F. OF L.

Support of La Follette to Be Taken Up at Atlantic City Meeting

Atlantic City, N. J., July 31.—Members of the American Federation of Labor are assembling here today preparatory to their meeting tomorrow with the question squarely before them as to whether they shall indorse the candidacy of Senator La Follette of Wisconsin for President and Senator Wheeler of Montana for Vice-President.

The decision reached by the council, whatever it may be, may have much influence on the coming campaign. The supporters of the La Follette-Wheeler ticket among the leaders of organized labor are planning for a show down of strength within the American Federation of Labor.

Those close to President Gompers confidently predicted that neither he nor the council will make any definite recommendations to the voters regarding the candidates, that neither he nor the council would come out enthusiastically for La Follette.

"The meeting of the executive council of the American Federation of Labor," Gompers said, "will continue over a period of several days and will deal with questions of vital interest to the labor movement and to our people generally.

"Of particular importance will be the question of political action as it relates to the present campaign. There has been great public interest in the course which the American Federation of Labor is to pursue in relation to the coming election and a great many forecasts have been made.

"Our great movement is firmly convinced as the result of long practice that the one hope for the wage-earner on the political field lies in being partisan to principles, not to political organizations."

TWO AMERICAN LIFE GUARDS ON DUTY

South Boston Beach Between Yacht Club and M Street First to Be Patrolled

The Boston American volunteer lifeguard corps today began its work of protecting the Boston beaches with the guarding of the South Boston beach, between the Boston Yacht Clubhouse and L street, where little William Paulson was barely rescued from death.

Guards for the other South Boston and Dorchester beaches will undertake their duties Saturday when, besides patrols at out-of-town bathing places, eighteen Boston American guards will protect the Boston beaches.

TWO GUARDS ON DUTY

Two men, thoroughly trained in Red Cross lifesaving methods, patrolled the beach above L street beginning at noon today. They are Joseph Stepner of Fay street South End, and Samuel Taylor of No. 34 Rose street, South Boston.

These men, like all the other members of the volunteer corps, are giving their time for the safety and protection of the public, especially little children, to whom the beaches are always dangerous.

EAST BOSTON BOY DROWNED

At about the same time, at Savin Hill beach, Dorchester, James Lanigan was rescued in the absence of City of Boston lifeguards, by Frank Segall, custodian of the bathhouse.

Twenty-year old Manuel Silva of No. 385 Princeton street, East Boston, was drowned at World War Memorial Park.

The Boston American has been requested by the Park Department of the City of Boston to station the American volunteer lifeguards at several of the unguarded beaches in South Boston and Dorchester.

UNPROTECTED BEACHES.

Among these are the beaches which the American showed to be unprotected, including the long Strandway beach, which has claimed two lives this month.

The bathing places which the City now wants guarded in South Boston are Pleasure Bay, the curve of beach at City Point, between Castle Island bridge and the Headhouse; the stretch of beach between the Boston Yacht Clubhouse and L street bathhouse; the beach between the L street bathhouse and the Mosquito Fleet Yacht Clubhouse; and the Strandway beach from the yacht clubhouse to the bend.

REALIZES NECESSITY.

In Dorchester, the beaches are the lower part of the Savin Hill beach and a section used by boys adjacent to the "Cow Pasture."

The beach known as Pleasure Bay is now guarded in part by city life guards. The other beaches are unguarded. Savin Hill Beach is partly protected by the city, but the lower end, where much swimming is done, is not protected.

The city has come to realize the grave necessity of providing guards for these places and has accepted the co-operation of the American.

A few more South Boston swimmers are being procured for the Boston American volunteer corps. Among the promising volunteers are Jim Twohig, former State representative, who battled the harbor waters in the Boston Light swim last year; Matt O'Donnell, Maurice Miller, John Flahive, Maurice Walsh, John J. Sullivan, Sidney Berkowitch and Morris Colton.

ASKS FOR 12 GUARDS.

State Senator John W. McCormack of South Boston has written to Mayor Curley as follows:

"The protection of the lives of those who use the Strandway beach should be a matter of primary concern to the City of Boston, and I feel that the number of life guards should be greatly increased in order to prevent any further drownings. Already two children have been drowned, and it is quite probable that the presence of a sufficient number of life guards would have prevented both deaths.

"I am writing, therefore, to ask that the number of life guards be increased by at least twelve, and that they be detailed for duty along the entire beach.

"It is my intention to introduce a bill in the coming legislature to try and have the parents of the two children who were drowned compensated for their great loss."

CASE AGAINST ALLEGED SLAYER BEING PREPARED

Worcester, July 31.—District Attorney Emerson W. Baker said his office was preparing evidence in the case of John Rea, charged with the murder, July 13, of his two fellow townsmen, Salvadore Poleo and Lindo Centrochio.

Mr. Baker declared his work was going on regardless of motions filed in Superior Court by counsel for the defence asking that the district attorney be restrained from presenting the case to the grand jury and that a commission of alienists be appointed to ascertain the sanity or insanity of the accused.

MAN SAVED FROM DEATH SENT TO PSYCOPATHIC

Edward Vassos, of No. 241 Chelsea street, Everett, who was saved from being crushed to death by the prompt action of the operator of an Eastern Massachusetts street railway car in Chelsea, Tuesday, was removed from the Chelsea Memorial Hospital to the Psychopathic Hospital.

TWO CHILDREN ARE HURLED FROM WINDOW

New York, July 31—Eight persons were injured, one seriously, in a fire today in a five-story tenement in Third avenue. One of the injured was a child thrown from a second-story window by its mother. A second child, thrown from the same window, was caught in the arms of a pedestrian.

Several rescues from the upper floors were made by the police and firemen.

TARAMASCHI IN GO WITH STASIAK TONIGHT

By JACK CONWAY.

ANGELO TARAMASCHI, Italian heavyweight wrestling champion, and Stanley Stasiak, Polish title holder, will clash in an international [illegible] to a finish at [illegible] wrestling contest of the season [illegible] crowd.

[illegible] and Stasiak has been hanging [illegible] grapplers [illegible] It appears that foreign wrestlers, unlike many of our American athletes, are more proud of their records and won't meet [illegible] unless things are even. They are not commercialized to the point where they will take a match merely for the purse involved.

Taramaschi and Stasiak have been preparing carefully for the contest. They will each enter the ring in the [illegible] condition and won't be able to [illegible]

TARAMASCHI is the best [illegible] former [illegible] Renato [illegible] big, powerful [illegible] six feet [illegible]

The Italian title holder [illegible] Johnny Wilson, middleweight [illegible] has plenty of courage. He [illegible] the issue at all times and w[illegible] ground to Stasiak. This is [illegible]

STASIAK, like Tamaraschi, realizes the importance of tonight's contest. The [illegible] disqualified [illegible] referee. In the second tussle Stasiak also counted with the first fall. Lewis then tossed him out of the ring [illegible] gave the strangler a victory.

FRANK DEUTCHER, the German lightheavyweight wrestler, will referee tonight's contest. [illegible] three pounds [illegible] have been installed [illegible] grandstand [illegible]

JOHNNY WILSON says he really defeated Jock Malone in the fifth round.

"The knockout came in the sixth session," said Wilson, "but it was in the fifth chapter that I won the contest. This was Malone's big round as far as scoring was concerned. It also broke his heart.

"Malone had been told that I had a glass jaw. Therefore, in the fifth frame he opened up and scored with four or five full right hand swings which landed flush on my jaw. When I only lowered my head and bored to close quarters, scoring with body smashes, Malone began to choke up. He had tried everything he had and couldn't stop my attack.

Then came the sixth frame, which was merely a matter of form. Malone had quit fighting after [illegible] found out in the fifth stanza that his punches didn't hurt me."

WE bow to the superior picking ability of Jim MacDonald, manager of George Robinson and Pat McCarthy. We named Wilson [illegible] before the fight. [illegible] knew Wilson was a great fighter [illegible]

Jock Malone Is to Jump Into Harbor At Noon Today

Chickie looked into the eyes of Luis Lamarck. [illegible]

"I have the car at the door, Miss Bryce [illegible] a most beautiful afternoon." He glanced meaningly [illegible] was aware of Miss Cheever [illegible] sitting very erect, her round eyes dewy and shining. The sight of a good looking man awakened [illegible] pastel dreams of a beautiful [illegible] love that had been hers. She had now a remote air, but [illegible] quivered. Her visitor was frankly straining forward.

Chickie said at once [illegible] alarmed: "I'm sorry, Mr. Lamarck. I have an engagement."

He was insistent. "Just for a few moments, my dear Miss Bryce. I have quite an important message. Of course if you like [illegible] state it here, just as you say."

Chickie had no way of meeting the courtly manner with its subtle insinuations. Almost at the point of tears she went out of the room.

Behind her own door [illegible] hesitant and [illegible] that [illegible] was to [illegible] What did Luis Lamarck want? Why was he here? She remembered the [illegible] ness of his eyes the night Edith had escorted her from the Willman home. She felt his hand pressing warmly on hers. He knew, knew everything [illegible] What message could he have for her. From Lee Willman? From Barbara? They had no word she wished to hear. For himself?

Decided to Stay

She walked to the bureau suddenly deciding to [illegible] her room [illegible] in the [illegible] had no [illegible]

She listened [illegible] long he would wait. There was a picture of Jonathan on a small easel against the mirror. The big noble eyes stared at her. She took it abruptly and turned the face down.

A door banged, then the silence thickened. It and the beating of her pulse made her uneasy. But more than anything else it was Jonathan's picture upside down like that.

Weak, evasive thing she was doing! Why should she fear Luis [illegible] Lamarck [illegible] Chickie [illegible]

Eyes Flashed

[illegible]

Chickie Had Let Them See How Weak She Was

[illegible] She was [illegible] The [illegible] Why had she [illegible] Because [illegible] She was [illegible] to answer yes [illegible]

On the following afternoon a letter came. It was from him.

Lamarck's Letter

My Dear Miss Bryce:

Perhaps I should [illegible] Will you pardon my [illegible] I have, however, [illegible] a message and I trust you will not misinterpret [illegible] I am aware that you are no longer working for your former employer [illegible]

May I [illegible] Miss Bryce? [illegible] dinner. Your pleasure is mine.

"Very sincerely,

"LUIS LAMARCK."

Chickie read this several times. She could find nothing insinuating, nothing to justify the erratic anger [illegible] even forcing her to dinner with [illegible]

3 MINUTE JOURNEYS

By Temple Manning

TUNIS, capital of the principality of Tunis in Northwestern Africa, is a favorite stopping-off place for tourists. They enjoy both the ultra-modern comfort of its European hotels and shops, and picturesque native thoroughfares of this colorful city on the Mediterranean.

Not all tourists, however, who visit Tunis find the route to an out-of-the-way bit of the native quarter known as the "Dyers' street." It is said—and I can easily believe this is true from my own experience—that even the most sophisticated traveler, turning suddenly into the Dyers' street for the first time, gives a gasp of surprise.

The best time of year to visit the Dyers' street and experience the thrill of its astonishing appearance is in late Winter or early Spring. At this season the trees that line the street have not yet put on their foliage and they show to best advantage their decorations of huge blossoms of every imaginable color. Every bare bough has its odd-looking flower.

On close inspection these flowers prove to be nothing more or less than tresses of wool freshly dyed and hung out in the sun to dry. For it is in the Dyers' street of Tunis that the native dyers who produce the exquisite colorings of the woolen fabrics for which the city is famous, busily ply their trade.

When the breezes blow these multi-colored tresses of fringed wool and dark shadows flicker on pavements and walls of the white houses, the result is a bewildering kaleidoscope of color.

Later on, this skillfully-dyed wool will be used to ornament the burbous of the Arabian women or else in fashionable exquisite rugs and carpets. Some of these rugs will be placed on display in the "souks" or bazaars of the native quarter, while many others will be exported to markets in all lands. There they will be sure to command appreciation and high prices. Indeed, the artistry and clever, patient workmanship put into these Oriental rugs gives them a beauty and value that steadily increases as they grow older.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By Dr. F. X. Mahoney
Boston Health Commissioner

THE care of your skin is based upon something far more important than cleanliness for the sake of appearance.

Dr. Mahoney.

The skin is composed of three layers.

The outer layer is relatively hard and scaly. It is called the "epidermis," which means "upon the derma or true skin."

It is a natural law that this layer, when whole and normal, is always capable of protecting its possessor from invasion by germs—the deadly enemies of animal life.

The next layer—the "derma"—contains the sweat glands and the oil glands that open on the surface, also the endings of nerves by which you have the sense of feeling.

The third or deep layer of the skin connects the other two with the deeper structures of the body and holds the blood vessels and nerves that are distributed to the glands and follicles of the two outer or upper layers.

You see from this arrangement that by your skin not only are you protected from the outside but you are saved by having poisons in the form of sweat and oil thrown off from the inside.

There is another most important function of the skin that is not usually taken into account—that you breathe through your skin!

If all the pores of your skin were closed so that no poisonous air could escape through it, you would die in a few minutes.

You see from these facts why it is of the highest importance that the secretions and dead scales shall not be permitted to accumulate and clog the pores so as to interfere with these important and dearly vital functions.

QUESTIONS ANSWERED

Is it a dangerous thing to neglect diseased tonsils? Do you advise having them removed?

N. A. P., Boston.

You should be guided wholly by the advice of the physician or surgeon who is attending you as to whether your tonsils should be removed. Generally speaking, when tonsils are diseased, the germ is apt to attack the joints or the kidneys and for their bad results on other parts of the body, they should often be removed.

At what age does arterioschlerosis generally begin in adults. Please explain just what this disease is.

J. G. P., Cambridge.

Arteriosclerosis is hardening of the arteries and high blood pressure, which means that the tubes through which the blood flows become smaller and stiffer than they normally are. It generally shows itself after about the age of forty-five or fifty.

MEDBURY SAYS—

By John P. Medbury

THE average person who goes on a vacation spends fourteen hours a day sending postal cards with "Having a fine time, wish you were here" written on them.

A DAME on her vacation will send a postal card to some acquaintance she wouldn't bother to talk to if she met her on the street at home.

A WOMAN likes her friends to know that she's stopping at some place that they couldn't afford.

ONE dame who was spending two weeks in Kokomo, Indiana, wouldn't send any cards from there because the name of the town didn't sound classy enough.

SHE gave them to a traveling salesman and asked him to mail them from Lake Geneva.

WHEN she got back she discovered that the drummer had made a mistake and slipped them in a mail box at Watertown Junction.

FOR ten days she was afraid to go out of the house for fear the neighbors would ask her where she'd been.

SHE had to hire a burglar to break in all the houses in the neighborhood and steal the postcards that she'd written.

SHE says she's never going to speak to another traveling salesman as long as she lives.

MOST people would rather spend their vacation at home but they hate to have the people next door think they haven't got enough money to go away.

SO the average woman buys some clothes, packs her grips and goes away, acting just like she could afford it.

FINANCE

By B. C. Forbes

What is the surest way of reaching the top?

One is tempted to reply, "become a lawyer."

Do you realize that five of the six men nominated by the three principal political conventions are lawyers? Calvin Coolidge practiced law before he went into politics. John W. Davis, as all the world has been well told, is a lawyer. La Follette was a lawyer before entering politics. General Dawes practiced law in Lincoln, Neb., before he became a banker. Senator Wheeler first won his spurs in Montana as a lawyer and fighter of corporate interests there. Governor Bryan, somehow, neglected to become a lawyer. Incidentally, more than two-thirds of our Senate at Washington usually are lawyers.

The door which leads to the law school would appear to lead also not only to high public office, but to the mountain-tops of the business world.

* * *

The head of the largest industrial enterprise in the world, the United States Steel Corporation, was a lawyer and a judge when he first became interested in business affairs, namely, E. H. Gary. I rather think that the remarkable success achieved by Judge Gary at the helm of the Steel Corporation has influenced some other corporations to select men of legal training as their chief executives.

* * *

No enterprise in America is showing a more wonderful record than the General Electric Company. When its veteran founder and upbuilder, C. A. Coffin, decided that the time had come for him to hand over the reins to a younger man, he chose a lawyer, Owen D. Young, whose ability and fame have since spread to the farthest corners of the world. Mr. Young early was drawn to the electrical field through handling important problems for Stone & Webster.

* * *

The president of the largest sugar refining company in the world, Earl D. Babst, was a lawyer.

The president of the gas company supplying the largest city in America, George B. Cortelyou of the Consolidated Gas Company of New York, was a lawyer.

The president of the largest financial institution in America, Charles E. Mitchell, took a night course in law to equip himself the best for handling business problems.

William A. Gaston, leading Boston banker, was a lawyer.

You often hear it said that almost every railroad head has come up through the ranks. This is in the main true, but lawyers have managed to annex a few of the biggest railroad positions in the land.

The New York Central for many years had a lawyer at its head, the intrepid Chauncey M. Depew, who is still on the job daily as chairman of the board. And, recently, when a practical railroad man was made president, the board selected a lawyer, A. H. Morris, as chairman of the finance committee.

The president of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy, Hale Holden, at one time practiced law in Kansas City.

Charles Donnelly, president of the Northern Pacific, was a lawyer in Washington, D. C.

The Southern Railway has been brought to its present state of efficiency and placed on a dividend basis by a lawyer, Fairfax Harrison, president of the company.

When Harriman looked around for a man to become his chief lieutenant, it was a lawyer he selected, Judge Lovett.

One of the foremost members of J. P. Morgan, Dwight W. Morrow, is a lawyer.

Alvan MacAuley was a lawyer until he took hold of the Packard Motor Car Company.

Has the time come when young men should no longer be given Horace Greeley's advice, "Go West, Young Man," but should be told "become a lawyer, young man?"

REFUNDING ISSUES OF BONDS PLANNED

Bankers and officials of several large corporations are understood to be planning conferences to float refunding issues because the bond market has reached such a high level, companies having bonds outstanding with high interest rates being chiefly affected. Ample opportunity to sell bonds with lower coupon rates is afforded by the present market and would result in heavy reduction in overhead interest charges.

PRICES HIGHER IN NEW YORK STOCKS

In trading on the New York Stock Exchange, bullish demonstrations were staged in virtually all groups, revival of strength and activity in the motors being one of the features.

Rails followed in the wake of industrials with the so-called Van Sweringen stocks changing hands in large volume on reports of an early announcement of consolidation plans. "Nickel Plate" common rising 3 points to a record high at 105¾.

General Electric moved up more than 2 points on rumors that interests identified with the Electric Bond and Share Co., which it is supposed to control, had obtained a majority interest in the American Water Works properties.

Some of the strong spots included United Fruit, Remington Typewriter, American Agricultural Chemical preferred, Pierce Arrow preferred, Mack Truck, Maxwell A and American Tobacco, up 1½ to 3½ points.

Commercial solvents issues were heavy on reports that the company's Terre Haute plant had closed because of poor business. Call money opened at 2 per cent.

Speculative Rail Bonds Are in Active Demand

New York bond prices again turned upward in New York trading with an active demand for speculative rail issues, and various public utility and industrial liens.

Reports of progress made in negotiations for consolidation of the Erie with the enlarged "Nickel Plate" system promoted accumulation of Erie bonds, the convertible 4s "B" advancing a point.

St. Paul issues rebounded a point or so, making up most of yesterday's loss, and New Haven, Interborough and other local traction liens scored similar gains.

American Water Works 5s jumped 2½ points as this company's common stock reached a new high level for the year.

United Fruit Is Up More Than 2 Points in Boston

In trading on the Boston Stock Exchange, American Telephone rose better than a point. United Fruit was up 2½. Ventura added a major fraction. Boston Elevated was off a point at 73 and Pacific Mills a point lower at 83.

DU PONT INCOME IS OFF FOR HALF-YEAR

Half-yearly report of E. I. Du Pont de Nemours shows net income of $7,610,089 compared with $10,125,882 in the first six months of 1923. This is equal after debenture stock dividends to $5.84 a share on the common stock, against $8.54 a share a year ago. Profit and loss surplus was $53,398,414. Net sales of $47,761,249 were about $1,500,000 less than in the corresponding period of 1923.

CERRO DE PASCO IS SPEEDING UP WORK

Cerro De Pasco copper output for first 15 days of July was 2,500,000 pounds copper. Manager Kingsmil estimates July output at 4,000,000 pounds. The smelter started with an accumulation which affected output in first half of the month. Mr. Kingsmill's July estimate indicates he expects an output of 1,500,000 pounds for the last two weeks. This would indicate his assurance of being able to produce 3,000,000 pounds a month with one reverberatory in operation.

COTTON MILLS AND BUYERS IN TUG-OF-WAR

Upon the outcome of the current tug-of-war between mills and buyers depends much of the success or failure of 1924 as a cotton manufacturing year.

It is estimated that 90 per cent. of the country's cotton mills failed to show a profit for the first six months, but the industry has a record for amazing recuperative ability and under favorable conditions the remaining months of 1924 may offset the hardships of the first six.

The cotton textile market is gradually working into a deadlock. The substantial buying of last week does not promise to be equaled this week for the reason that mills, encouraged by the advance in cloth and yarn, are holding off for still better prices. Manufacturers are about through selling goods for less than cost and now that the trend seems to be turning their way are determined to get the market back again to a profitable basis.

Some idea of the disparity between manufacturing costs and selling prices is brought out by a comparison of these items now and a year ago.

Market conditions during the first week in August, 1923, may be characterized as fair and conducive to a modest profit to the mill with its cotton averaged low and with well-controlled manufacturing costs.

At that time there was a manufacturing margin on 4 yard brown sheetings of about 18½ cents a pound over and above the cost of raw material. Out of this 18½ cents all manufacturing costs, labor and overhead had to be deducted before arriving at a manufacturing profit. Now this manufacturing margin has been cut to 7½ cents a pound, or nearly 60 per cent.

Other staple constructions, such as the 38½ inch 64x60 5.35 yards print cloth, show a drop from 22 cents in August, 1923, to 11.32 cents, or 48 per cent. In yarns the decline has not been so pronounced, because yarn never enjoyed the rally cloth did in 1923. The yarn recession has been about 30 per cent.

PARCEL POST'S EXPORTS IN MILLIONS

By FRANK H. MELOON,
Financial Editor.

I am told Uncle Sam has joined hands with the exporter and, through the help of the parcel post, American goods are now being shipped abroad to the value of approximately $2,000,000 each month, according to the Commerce Department.

On the basis of partial figures, exporters using this method are shown to have sold their goods in foreign countries to the value of $8,300,452 during the first five months of the present year. Starting with shipments valued at only $1,036,500 in January, the business has grown to $2,236,803 in May.

Dry goods and clothing with a valuation of $2,110,000 account for one-quarter of the entire trade. Silk goods and silk wearing apparel are the most important items in this classification, followed by cotton goods and cotton clothing, artificial silk manufactures, and wool clothing.

SERVICE IS NEW.

Optical goods exports amounted to $621,000; leather and manufactures of, $576,000; furs and manufactures of, $551,000, and jewelry and gold manufactures $446,000.

The figures are now available for the first time, being the result of a new service recently inaugurated by the Commerce Department at the urgent request of those industries whose exports have been hitherto considerably underestimated in the trade statistics.

The new figures do not show our total exports by parcel post, according to Director Julius Klein of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, because they do not include shipments valued at less than $25. It is estimated that there are at least half a million such shipments each month. Parcel post business of this class is so great in fact that the cost of compiling the figures would be excessive and out of proportion to the value of the data thus collected.

Commenting on the significance of the new figures, Director Klein points out that where formerly the average American business man considered foreign sales as some "fantastical super-mysterious impossibility," today a mail order from some remote point of the earth for a parcel post package causes no more excitement than a similar request from Boston, Chicago, or San Francisco. The most gratifying feature of this new export development, in Klein's opinion, is the fact that it proves that the American business man is at last viewing foreign trade in its true light—as merely "long distance selling."

"BOOK VALUE."

To M. M. M.—"Book value" represents the amount of existing equities for capital stock liability—generally, common stock. Unless a complete knowledge as to both the physical and financial condition of a company is possessed the formula used has no significance in so far as arriving at actual value is concerned. Frequently a book value will show equities well over 100 per cent. on a company's stock capital, but after deducting overvaluations placed upon plant, properties, investments, bills and accounts receivable, etc., it becomes evident that the company is bankrupt.

When rating the common or any unsecured obligation, no undue attention should be paid to book value, but particular consideration given to earnings over a period of years in conjunction with an analysis that will arrive at the true condition of the company.

STEEL STOCK SUPPLY SMALL IN STREET

The common stock of the United States Steel Corporation, it is thought, is working into a legimative "corner." Never in the memory of veteran brokers has there been such a small amount of Steel common floating around Wall Street.

The continual diminishing supply of the stock is attributed to the steady absorption not only of stockholders throughout the world but the demand from the corporation's labor force. On March 31 last the floating supply of common, as indicated by stocks in the hands of brokers amounted to 1,137,835 shares, or 22.39 per cent of the total issue. Investors' holdings on March 31 were 3,945,100 shares, or nearly 78 per cent of the total.

One broker of long standing said yesterday that as a rule the big brokerage firms in the Street carried from 10,000 to 20,000 shares of Steel. At the opening yesterday this firm had less than 1,000 shares.

Transactions in Steel common yesterday were the largest in months. George F. Baker's statement that he considered the stock a $7 issue added to the buying.

Steel common is believed to be selling out of line as a $7 investment issue when taking into consideration its half billion dollar surplus composed of cash and Liberty bonds.

It was pointed out recently that the corporation's annual reports showed that between 1901 and 1908 it applied the sum of $162,796,509 of surplus earned in payment of expenditures for property additions, writing in its balance sheet the amount of surplus thus applied in reduction of its property asset. Accordingly that amount of surplus earnings so applied did not appear in the balance sheet as part of its stated surplus account.

The company's total net profits, after dividends on the preferred and on its $508,302,500 common stock, since its incorporation and to December 31, 1923, were $831,445,643. Of that amount $487,751,220 was shown in the balance sheet as surplus, $180,898,014 [illegible] surplus, while the $162,795,509 referred to above did [illegible] all as surplus. The latter amount of surplus was equal to $32 a share on the common stock. Total undivided surplus was carried at $12,751,200, including $25,000,000 surplus provided at organization.

HUB DISABLED VETS SAVED U. S. $30,000

Vocational School Turning Out Artificial Backbones, Arms and Legs

Wounded and disabled World War veterans, planning to devote their lives to the task of assisting their former buddies more seriously disabled than themselves, have developed a novel department at the United States Veterans' Bureau Vocational School, Commonwealth avenue.

They are learning to make artificial arms, legs and backbones, and, according to government investigators, their work of the past three years has saved the nation $30,000, restored scores of mutilated men to usefulness, and earned for the Boston school the distinction of having one of the finest orthopedic manufacturing plants in America.

Under the supervision of Peter F. Rogerson, chief of the government's orthopedic plant, the Boston veterans have turned out more than 6,200 plaster casts in the course of their work. Braces, leather corsets, artificial arms, and artificial legs are a part of the daily output of the school.

EXPERT ADVICE ON BONUS IS GIVEN FREE

American's Soldier Friend Bureau Is Serving Hundreds of Vets

Hundreds of veterans of the World War are completely satisfied with the service of the American Soldiers' Friend Bureau at No. 100 Summer street, having availed themselves of the advice on adjusted compensation problems given free of charge by the bureau experts.

Come in, Mr. Veteran, if you are in doubt as to any phase of the bonus regulations, applications, fingerprints, etc.

The office is large and airy, the attaches of the bureau are courteous and polite. If you can't visit us, write us of your perplexities. Your letter will be promptly answered.

Here are some questions and answers:

T. G. W., MONTREAL.

Q. 1—Through an error and no fault of mine my service records gave my place of birth as Boston. After a period of service in the Army I noticed this and took it up with my top-sergeant who told me not to bother with it. What should I give as my correct place of birth in applying for the bonus?

2—I had six months of domestic service and fifteen months overseas service. What will be the approximate value of my policy?

A. 1—In applying for the bonus you should give your correct place of birth. In answering question 18, which is entitled "remarks," you should tell about the error in your service record.

2—You will be entitled to a paid-up insurance policy of approximately $1,660, payable to you in cash at the end of twenty years, or to your beneficiary in the event of your death within that period.

G. L., PAWTUCKET, R. I.

Q. I served in the Army from May 10, 1917, to April 29, 1919, serving nineteen months overseas with the 26th Division. How much am I entitled to receive?

A. From your length of service you will undoubtedly be entitled to the maximum service credit of $625, and the twenty year paid-up policy which you will receive will have a face value of about $1,600.

C. J., NORTH ANDOVER.

Q. Is the father and mother of a deceased veteran, who are now receiving monthly compensation, entitled to this bonus?

A. If the mother or father of a deceased veteran were dependent upon the veteran for support at the time of his death, they are entitled to make application for the bonus in the order named, regardless of whether either parent now receives monthly compensation. In the event of the mother's death before the bonus is entirely paid to her, then the dependent father will receive the remainder. This answer is given, of course, on the presumption that the veteran left no widow or children, for in such event, the widow and the children under eighteen years of age would be entitled to the benefits of the law.

F. R. S., NEWBURYPORT.

Q.—I enlisted July 5, 1917, and was discharged April 29, 1919. Served overseas from September 23, 1917, until March 31, 1919. What will my bonus-amount to and when is it payable? Can I make the beneficiary anybody outside of a relative?

A.—You will be entitled to the maximum service credit of $625. This service credit multiplied by 2½ will give you the approximate face value of your 20-year paid-up insurance certificate. You may designate any one you wish as beneficiary. Official application blanks are now available at any post office, American Legion Post or other veterans' organization in your city. If you cannot obtain one, write us again and we will forward one to you.

MRS. J. T. H., OTTER RIVER.

A.—I tok a boy who was a State ward when he was eight years of age and I brought him up and fed and clothed him and kept him at school until 18 years of age, although State wards are expected to earn their own living after 16 years of age. He was notified to depart for camp on Nov. 12, 1918, by the Draft Board, but on November 11, 1918, he received a message from the draft board that he need not come. He had been working in the Fore River shipyards and on being called had given up his position at Fore River. When he received his notice from the draft board he returned to Fore River and was informed that his position was no longer open. It cost him $20 for his expenses to Fore River. He has since died. Am I entitled to the bonus?

A.—From the facts stated you stood in the place of a parent of this boy and that makes you eligible as a dependent. No service was performed by your ward which would entitle him, if living, to receive the bonus.

MILK FARMERS SCORE OVER COLLEGE

Amherst, July 31.—With its plan for a "one big co-operative" of New England the Milk Producers' Association scored on the Massachusetts Agricultural College, when the Massachusetts Farm Bureau Federation voted the following recommendation:

"To recommend the plan of the New England Dairy System to the serious consideration of all dairy men who find that it promises a betterment of their own particular condition."

The Farm Bureau's resolution gives the New England Milk Producers' Association great comfort, just as it is about to begin its drives for farmers' subscriptions to raise $100,000 initial capital for the enterprse. It is very much like coming to the Agricultural College's party and running away with the cake.

Director John C. Willard of the Massachusetts Agricultural College Extension Service said that although the college economists still hold to their positions, that a large part of New England dairymen will be better served in local co-operatives than in the proposed "one big co-operative" they would not take further issue.

Among the feed men at the conference were: C. M. Cox of the C. M. Cox Company, Boston; Roy E. Cutting and J. A. McLane, of the Quaker Oats Company, Boston; Milton Cushing, of Fitchburg and A. I. Merigold, of the Whittemore Company, Boston.

A Nice Little Diamond

Right in the Corner of Her Nose

A Diamond for a Nose Ornament

This charming young lady, a Maharanee, titled lady wife of an important gentleman from far-off India, wonders why YOU WONDER that she should have a beautiful diamond stuck through a hole in her left nostril as an ornament.

The lady has a right to wonder. She would say to her American sisters:

"You make holes in your EARS and stick diamonds in those holes. Sometimes you have earrings several inches long almost dragging on your shoulders. Why shouldn't I make a hole in my nose instead of my ear and put a diamond there?"

All women, through long ages, have been compelled to attract men's attention. They have had to bear in mind the fact, even in recent years, that men are only partly civilized.

The man of India likes to see his beautiful lady with a diamond in her nose.

The African gentleman, near the Equator, is not satisfied with small ornaments. He wants a woman with a piece of bone as big as the palm of your hand stuck through a slit in her lower lip, making it stick out five or six inches.

The savage in South America makes the lady put the back of her head against a tree and knocks out her two upper teeth with a stone. He thinks that is beautiful.

Chinese gentlemen, really educated men, until very lately squeezed the feet of their daughters so that they were horribly deformed, and could with difficulty hobble on feet artificially kept as small as those of a little child.

Men have tattooed themselves with hideous designs, thinking it beautiful. Our women, in the memory of men comparatively young, have squeezed their feet, squeezed their waists, worn bustles, cast-iron corsets, hats two feet high, other hats three feet wide, artificial curls down the backs of their necks, switches, "rats" in their hair.

Just now they are cutting off their hair. But they will let it grow again!

We have no right to criticize the Maharanee of far India. First, let us pluck the fashion beam from our own eyes before criticizing the little diamond in her nicely formed nose.

"That's the Way the Money Goes"

John Byrne's New Job No Snap

Early in the morning of November 6, 1922, the rum-running motorboat Pandora II. was seized in Providence by prohibition agents. In Providence River the Pandora had helped to unload the cargo of the rum-running British schooner Marina.

On Tuesday of this week, the Pandora II. was sold at auction. The buyer was Joseph Sabatino. The price was $950.

During nearly two years of litigation the upkeep of the vessel cost the United States government approximately $2,200.

"Well-dressed bootleggers and prominent sportsmen were present," a reporter writes, "when the boat was put up at auction in the marshal's office at the Federal Building."

Long ago, the captain and crew of the Marina were acquitted of bringing liquor within the territorial waters of the United States. Seven hundred and seventy-five cases of liquor were returned to the Britisher.

The young Bostonian who has been sent up from Washington to take general charge of prohibition prosecutions in New England has been presented with no sinecure.

He will have the support—and sympathy—of all good citizens.

Bonus Discloses Misery

Post-war tragedies, involving hundreds of thousands of American lives, are disclosed by a recent report of the bonus.

Many thousands of veterans of the World War are today listed among the Army and Navy Departments' rolls as missing. They do not lie unidentified in France. They came home from service, but they have disappeared since they came to this country, leaving wives, sweethearts and mothers without a hint as to their whereabouts.

Their bonuses will probably never be paid, as, unless they are proved dead, their relatives are not entitled to a compensation, according to a War Department ruling.

Strange cases have come to light, stories of wanderlust, broken hearts, lost hopes and lives made almost useless.

Thousands of fighting men, restless in the return to humdrum business life after the constant excitement of the war, have slipped away, burying their identities and shutting behind them the doors of their earlier lives.

Of the 4,500,000 former service men who are eligible for the bonus probably 500,000 will never receive it.

Cripple Boy Needs Help

Helping Hand Editor:

Can you please help my little crippled boy. He is seven years old and needs everything in the line of clothes. I am a widow with a large family and haven't a cent to buy clothing with.

MRS. C. C.

Offers Crib and Mattress

Helping Hand Editor:

If you will send me the name of a needy family who could use a crib and mattress, suitable for a child up to 6 years of age, I would be glad to pay express charges on it. MRS. P. E. S.

Thank you. This offer was indeed a welcome one, as we always have calls for cribs. We have sent you the address of Mrs. S. T., Roxbury, who will be overjoyed to receive it.

Needs Mourning for Brother

Helping Hand Editor:

If some kind reader has a black outfit, size 40-42, I would be very glad to have it. I am in mourning for the loss of my dear brother, who was killed. I would also like some dresses for my little girls, any kind. There are nine children in my family. I have a new baby. Girls, 4 months, 5, 7, 8, 14; boys, 2, 4, 10, 15. I would be thankful for any things for the little girls as boys can wear most anything. My husband is quite ill.

MRS. NORA C.

Has Clothes to Give

Helping Hand Editor:

I have several articles of clothing that I wish to give to someone who can use them. If you will give me the name of the party who would like these things, I shall be glad to give them to her. MISS C. F. H.

Thank you. Mrs. McC., who is without work, will be grateful for the things you mention. We have sent you her address.

Must Have School Clothes

Helping Hand Editor:

I am 26 and have six children, and I am getting worried about colder weather as three boys are going to school and they haven't any overcoats. I have so many bills that it will take us a long time to pay as my husband wasn't working for a long time, only "pickings" enough for some food and rent. Will some reader help me who has coats that their children have outgrown. They are 5, 7 and 9½ years, and a few warm dresses for a girl of 8. She hasn't any dresses for colder weather. Has anyone a suit for a man, size 36 or 37? I take size 44, shoe 6. Boys take shoes size 7, 9, 13½, girls 11½, husband 7. MRS. M. T. S.

Dresses for Girl

Helping Hand Editor:

I have some dresses that would fit a girl 12 to 14 that I would like to give away to some needy person, also pair of white canvas shoes, size 4½-D military.

MRS. L. E.

Thank you. We are sending you the address of P. A., who is without work and has a large family. Also the address of Mrs. F. R. W., who wears the size shoe you mention.

WORDS OF THE WISE MEN

There is no more sure tie between friends than when they are united in their objects and wishes.

A good cause needs not to be patroned by passion, but can sustain itself upon a temperate dispute.

When you are aspiring to the highest place it is honorable to reach the second or even the third rank.

A man has no more right to say an uncivil thing than to act one.

Customs, interests, forms of worship, laws—all differ. Let a man be true, that is enough. The rest does not matter.

A WIFE'S MEDITATIONS

By HELEN ROWLAND

A WIFE is the only guaranteed, safety device for protecting an impressionable man against women.

Helen Rowland

It's funny how a man, who would be far too wise or cautious to put a committal line on paper, simply can't resist the temptation to have himself "snapped" in his bathing suit beside a dazzling mermaid.

There are a saint and a Circe in every woman; and, in the same woman, a good man may see the eternal Circe, and a rake the eternal saint—because that is what each of them happens to be looking for.

Some husbands appear to take off their office affability with their office coats, and to bring home only their threadbare nerves and their frayed interests under their topcoats.

The caution with which a bachelor plays the sentimental game is surpassed only by the careless rapture with which a married man plunges into every new flirtation. (But the married man knows he's SAFE!)

* * *

When a man brings his wife home a bottle of unusually alluring perfume, after "a little business trip," somehow, she can't help wondering where he got the IDEA.

* * *

Love, happiness and a lot of things in life may be vague and indefinite, but marriage is marriage, a flivver is a flivver, and a fortieth birthday is an unequivocal calamity.

* * *

Grandmother MAY have been a clinging vine, as they tell us, but in the old-fashioned daguerreotype she certainly appears to be "holding Grandfather down" with that firm, small hand on his shoulder.

A man's idea of "luck in love" consists in getting safely and gracefully out of a sentimental affair before he gets too far in it.

After marriage, alas, the flame of love so often subsides into a smouldering resentment.

Once-Overs

WICKED THOUGHTS.

A reader of Once Overs who lives in Chicago has sent a letter, saying:

"Sometimes I am positively alarmed by the evil and wicked thoughts which I have. I wonder if many persons have such thoughts?"

Do not other honest readers have thoughts at times which cause them to shudder mentally, if not physically?

Do not evil suggestions, as bad as any criminal could invent, come to your mind?

What do you do when such thoughts possess you?

Do you rid yourself of them, or do you ponder, deliberately intensifying them?

If you could look at yourself in a mirror you would be shocked at your facial expression at such times.

Perhaps it is strong will, pride, maybe courage or the lack of it which prevents you from carrying out the evil imagination of a too active brain.

It is always dangerous to let your mind dwell on a desire to do others harm.

Shake it off, walk it off, get yourself in hand, while you open your heart to that which is good and manly.

DR. FRANK CRANE ON AFTER FIVE YEARS

By DR. FRANK CRANE

IN a recent number of the Atlantic Monthly an article appeared called "After Five Years."

It was a record of the League of Nations since its formation.

Those who have championed and those who have opposed this League have been so hot that it is difficult for either side to see the exact facts. These will only come out after time has sifted them.

So far as we can see, the facts in the case at present are as follows:

1—The League never has been, and never will be, a partisan question, for it is a matter of engaging the co-operation of the whole world.

2—Some forty-seven out of the fifty-three or more nations of the world are united in it.

3—The League neither does what its protagonists claimed for it, nor threatens what its antagonists declared for it. It is more valuable than its opponent had supposed; it is less valuable than its defenders had imagined.

The League has demonstrated itself to be in no sense a super state. Every nation, and particularly those who are members of the League, is as jealous of its national sovereignty as we ourselves could be.

4—The most of the weaknesses of the League have been due to the refusal of the United States to become a party of it. The militarism of France and the collapse of Germany have been very largely due to this refusal. If we had taken our place, as was proper, in the League, and participated in its discussions, it would not have been necessary, for instance, for France to assume the imperialistic and intolerant ideas that she has done.

5—The League may not be, as it was hoped, an admirable and perfect way to end war, but it is some way. It has prevented wars by merely furnishing an opportunity for all people to express themselves.

6—The League has influence, but not authority. That is, it assists the nations to become world minded by virtue of bringing everything into a place where the good of all is discussed.

7—It is impossible to live in the world without doing one of two things: either co-operating with it or being independent of it.

Every form of activity tends to co-operation such as art, letters and commerce. Some way should be found to enable us to co-operate politically with the other peoples. We shall have to do one of three things: To enter the League without reservations, to enter it with reservations, or to co-operate without entering.

It is impossible for us to maintain a consistent isolation.

When the people of the country have had time enough seriously to digest the idea of the League of Nations they will decide upon one of these three things. No man lives forever, not even a Lodge, or a Johnson, or any other of the irreconcilables. Nothing lives forever but an idea. There was an idea at the bottom of the League; a beneficent idea which should be welcome to the world. It was the idea of co-operation and that idea will not die.

ARE YOU A "NEB"?

By Frank W. Burlingame
Chairman of Publicity for New England Week.

IN the inner recesses of your soul you are probably a NEB, for no one wants to be known as a pessimist or a knocker.

If you are not yet a NEB, you are at least promising material for a good, healthy, loyal one.

A NEB is a New England Booster. Every man, woman and child in New England is eligible for membership in the great and brotherly order of NEBS.

The greeting, and the grip, of the order of NEBS are not secret, or complicated. The ritual is simple. The initiation is open—it is easy.

But to be a good NEB, in all respects, requires eternal vigilance, and real New England determination, not to say persistence.

Any optimistic, cheerful, Hello word will do for a greeting. Any friendly, firm, neighborly, glad-to-see-you, New England handclasp will suffice for a grip.

All Get Together

Any conversation in which knockers of New England are firmly discouraged, and in which New England's sterling virtues, sterling products and sterling people are given simply their just dues, will serve as a good ritual.

Any effective way of convincing fellow New Englanders that all of us can get further by pulling together and by boosting for New England that by croaking and by casting the grit of pessimism into our wheels of progress, is the real initiation ceremony into the NEBs.

New England had in its fundamental opportunities the justfication for the strongest enthusiasm and loyalty among her sons and daughters. Our yield per acre on all staple crops is higher than the country's average. Our labor skill is far above that of most sections. Our per capita wealth—the reservoirs from which we can draw capital for development—is much higher than the average.

Our chief ports are many hours nearer to export markets than are the other ports of the country. We have wonderful water-power resources. And there is something about the New England climate which makes for strong, rugged character, both of body and and mind, of our people.

Because some of New England's best blood, brains and labor have gone out to develop other sections does not mean that there is not plenty of the highest type of all three left right here at home. Because some of New England's money has gone into outside enterprises does not mean that there is not still a tremendous amount remaining, in use, or available to use for our own development.

But other sections of the country have boosted their own advantage so long and loudly, while we have remained quiet about those of New England, that gradually many of our people have begun to believe that New England has no advantages. And sad though it be, many of these disbelievers have changed from passive pessimism to violent knockers.

It is with these misguided individuals that the patience, the persistence, the vigilance, and the retermination of the true NEB must be constantly employed. No longer must we allow to pass unchallenged or uncorrected, the statement, the feeling, or the insinuation that New England has gone, or is going, to the bow-wows.

Outside Infection

Those who make such statements or insinuations, or who feel this, are simply New Englanders who have become weakened and ill from outside infection or from the lack of nourishing and strengthening effects that actual knowledge of New England's resources and opportunities give.

Or perhaps these thin-skinned pessimists are in need of an active anti-scorbutic like loyalty.

As benevolent and forseeing New England Boosters, we must see that they are healed and made well—so that their illness may not be catching—and so that as strong, healthy and loyal citizens of New England they may be initiated into the grand and glorious order of New England Boosters.

New England Week, September 15 to 20, is the great demonstration and convention of the NEBs. It can be made to cure more pessimists and knockers in a shorter time than any other tonic or specific. Find out from your local Chamber of Commerce, or from the General Committee, No. 419 Chamber of Commerce Building, Boston what you can do to make New England Week a success and to swell the ever growing ranks of the NEBS.
